ROOSEVELT THIRSTS IN JUNGLE

NAIVASHA, British East Africa, July 14.—The Roosevelt party is active in search for game in the vicinity of Lake Naivasha. Monday and Tuesday the party was on the march from dawn until after nightfall. The pool that had been the objective was found dry and the party had to spend the night in a waterless camp.

After pitching camp on Saturday night, the members of the party under the guidance of Colonel Roosevelt set out in all directions looking for a pool. The quest was fruitless and all were compelled to go to bed thirsty.

Sunday was a fiery tropical day, but there was no rest for the Roosevelt party. It was at this stage that Cunningham, traveling light, detached himself from the party, and accompanied by a few natives hurried on to the Allenborough estate. The Roosevelt party started onward at a slow pace and it began to look as though they would have to put in another day of suffering without water.

Late Sunday evening they came upon a muddy little pool from which they got a small supply of drinking water. Colonel Roosevelt restrained the members of his party until the water was boiled, although they wanted to drink from the muddy bottom.

50 SHOT IN STRIKE RIOT

PITTSBURG, Pa., July, 14.—A pitched gun battle in which fifty men were wounded, two of them seriously and one probably fatally, and Chief Carroll of the Stowe township police, received dangerous stab wounds, was fought outside the plant of the Pressed Steel Car Works this afternoon, when a squad of forty police attempted to escort strike breaking workmen through a mob of thousands of men and women.

An instant later he was disarmed by a giant slav, who turned the revolver on the policeman. Other strikers drew revolvers and a fusillade of shots were exchanged.

Strikers who had no guns drew knives. Chief Parrel was sinsed in a score of places. Stones flew so thick that many strikers' hands were split open by their own friends.

Women were knocked down and trampled upon. The police fled for their lives and telephoned the city police for reinforcements.

The entire town is in possession of the mob. Business losses will amount to thousands as a result of stores, banks and other establishments broken into and wrecked by the strikers who are apparently drunk with a desire to break something.

The strikers and a mob assembled at the gates of the plan about noon welting for the 500 workmen in the wooden car department, who had refused to join the strike, to come out for lunch. Officials of the car company telephoned for police protection and a squad of forty men headed by Chief Parrell made their way into the plant through a rear entrance and ordered to escort the workmen out in safety.

When they reached the gate they were greeted by a storm of bricks, stones and clubs. A moment later the strikers closed in on the rear and began attacking the workmen from both sides.

Terrified, the workmen broke and ran for their lives. The police drew revolvers and closed in with the mob. A policeman fired into the crowd, his shot striking a man in the stomach, inflicting probably fatal wounds.

LOBBY FEES PAID BY BIG CORPORATIONS

In the additional returns made to-day under the so-called "lobby act," is the statement that the Western Union Telegraph Company paid Arthur Lord a fee of $500 for work in its interest and Armour & Co. paid Arthur F. Hardy $300. The Western Union Company was interested in the time filing bill, and Armour & Co. were interested in beef legislation. Other items filed were:

Charles H. Davis paid Howard Whitmore $3000 for services and $253.87 for expenses in connection with legislation to provide for improving the harbor at the mouth of Bass River in Yarmouth.

District Assembly No. 30, Knights of Labor, paid Thomas H. Channing $213 for services.

The Conveyancers' Title Insurance Company paid Robert Homans $375 for services on all insurance legislation.

The Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Limited, paid James A. Lowell $1,000 for representing it on all legislation.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen paid Joseph M. Hefferin $910 for services on all legislation.

The United States Casualty Company paid Matthews, Thompson & Spring a fee and expenses amounting to $525.99.

The Safe Roads Automobile Association paid George McClure Sargent $535.

The Aetna Life Insurance Company paid William A. Morse $1,000.

PROSTRATIONS TO-DAY.

LAWRENCE McMAHAN, 60, of Lake street, East Boston, overcome while at work at the Lottes Oil Works, Chelsea. Marine Hospital.

L. STEWART, twenty-eight, of Bingham; overcome at Upham's corner. City Hospital Relief Station.

GLADYS WHITTAKER, twenty-four, of No. 28 Sumner street, East Boston, was prostrated at factory of the Potter Company, East Boston. East Boston Relief Hospital.

Because of a twenty-degree drop in the humidity, Boston was to-day saved from the suffering it endured yesterday. A light breeze from the northwest and a somewhat lower temperature also helped in making to-day more comfortable.

Yesterday the humidity was 80 at 8 o'clock in the morning, or ten degrees above normal. To-day it was only 60 at the same hour. At noon yesterday the humidity registered 66, while to-day it was but 45. The comparatively uncloudy sky to-day allowed the sun to dry up the moisture in the air. Yesterday's clouds made the day almost unbearable.

The temperature to-day averaged six or seven degrees lower than yesterday.

The weather is fair throughout most of the country and it is extremely hot in the southwest. At Knoxville, Tenn., there was an unusually heavy rain to-day, about two and one-half inches being registered.

The local weather bureau says there is no hot wave in sight so far as can be predicted to-day.

All that is in sight is fair, seasonable weather, according to Mr. Smith, head of the local bureau.

THAW HAS RACK FOR HIS WIFE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 14.—Harry K. Thaw entered the courtroom on the third day of the inquiry into his sanity carrying a big morocco portfolio, which contained among other things a long list of questions which he had prepared for his counsel to propound to his wife when she resumed the stand to-day.

Thaw worked long into the night at his typewriter in the jail, preparing these questions, aided in part by copies of the letters which had passed between himself and Evelyn since his incarceration at the Matteawan Asylum for the criminal insane. These letters he also had to-day in the portfolio.

It was announced that Thaw would take the stand in his own behalf.

Crowd of Women in Court.

Thaw appeared in good spirits. After the usual greeting to his family he started to sort and arrange his papers, consulting frequently with his lawyer.

There was a larger crowd to-day than previously, a large proportion of the spectators being women, attracted by the possibility of seeing Evelyn Thaw on the stand to testify against her husband.

Anna G. W. Daly, a lawyer, of Poughkeepsie, the first witness, said she had been a stenographer and had visited Thaw in the jail at his request to take affidavits for him. Thaw gave her memorandums from which she prepared the legal documents. Deputy County Clerk Stillman of Poughkeepsie told her, she said, he had found Thaw extremely bright.

It was announced by Attorney Morschauser at the opening that he would be able to produce letters to prove that Daniel O'Reilly was acting as counsel for both Harry Thaw and his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, at the time the former made the alleged threat to kill her should he be set free. In case the letters prove this, Justice Mills will not allow the young woman to answer the questions that the State is so anxious to get on record.

Detectives Shadow Witnesses.

The letters which Thaw brought to court will be read if Evelyn's testimony is admitted by the Court, and she will be questioned regarding statements contained in them.

Thaw has several detectives working on the case, and they are keeping in touch with the movements of the State's attorneys. Witnesses for both sides are being constantly shadowed.

When Court adjourns to-day the State will probably ask that the case be put over until next Monday in order to give the alienists a chance to examine Thaw. No announcement has yet been made as to who the alienists are that have been engaged to look after Thaw's interests.

Thomas J. Glindell, a Poughkeepsie druggist, testified that he called upon Thaw twice in a professional way and thought all of his actions rational. Thaw said to

REBELS BOMBARDED BY PERSIAN TROOPS

TEHERAN, July 14.—The fighting in the streets of Teheran that has been going on more or less consistently since the nationalist forces entered the capital at 5 a. m. yesterday, became more serious at midnight, when the Persian Cossacks opened a heavy artillery fire on the nationalists, who at that hour attempted to rush the Cossacks' position from the north and east.

The nationalists succeeded in occupying a garden close to the house of Colonel Liakhoff, the military commander of Teheran, where they are now being shelled by the Cossacks.

Rifle and artillery fire has been practically continuous since yesterday morning.

Soldiers of the Shah from Sultanabad have approached to within three miles of the city and are now shelling Bakahiteran, the quarter of the city where the Parliament building is situated.

It is reported that the Shah's troops are endeavoring to enter the city by one of the northern gates.

Sipahdar and Sedoulassad, the national leaders, have just transmitted the following messages to the British and Russian diplomatic representatives:

"In spite of the fact that the Russian flag is flying over the house of Colonel Liakhoff, nationalist forces are being fired on by Persian Cossacks stationed under the roof of this house."

40 KINDS OF 'BUGS' WAR ON BROWNTAILS

A great insect war is being waged in Massachusetts.

The invading forces are being buried at the enemy in every direction from Melrose.

Millions of the combatants have perished to-day, although the campaign for this year is not twenty-four hours old.

The United States government and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts have imported an army of forty different regiments of species of parasite, flies and beetles, to wage war on the brown tail and gypsy moths.

Yesterday the brown-tails, millions of them, invaded Massachusetts from New Hampshire, blown in by a brisk northerly wind. The caterpillars of more turned into moths, and they almost hid the big electric street lights.

The invaders are devouring the leaves of the trees in every direction. The foliage in many places has been stripped from the branches until they stand bare as in Winter.

Millions of the combatants have perished to-day, although the campaign for this year is not twenty-four hours old.

To-day the detachments of parasites and beetles which this State and the Federal government have imported from Europe to the laboratory in Melrose are being turned loose to make war on the gypsy and brown-tails.

Dr. Charles Howard, chief of the federal Bureau of Entomology, is the general in chief of the army of extermination. Superintendent W. F. Fisk of the Department of Agriculture is next in command. Under him are six special assistants, trained entomologists from Washington, and twenty assistants from Massachusetts.

For more than two years these men have been importing and developing the forty species of parasites which are counted upon to exterminate the moth. Some of these parasites came from Europe and Japan. Calosoma beetles are brought here from France and Germany.

The small flies from China lay their eggs on the backs of browntail and gypsy moth caterpillars. These eggs hatch and the larvae or grubs burrow into the body of the caterpillar and eat and kill it.

The blepharipha flies, which look just like the common house flies here, come from Europe. They lay their eggs on leaves and the larvae burrow alive into the caterpillars after they have entered the cocoon or pupa stage and kill them.

The magna cornus flies, big fellows, like bluebottles, deposit their young after they are hatched and the larvae or grubs eat the caterpillars.

ART IN ADVERTISING.

The merchant of to-day has come to realize the increasing importance of "fascination" in advertising. In doing so he has aimed to make his advertisements artistically attractive, but at the same time to have the illustrations used therein so absolutely pricking as to be fascinating.

A most emphatic example of this modern advertising is the full page advertisement prepared for the Khotassi Rug Company, which will adorn the back page of The American Sunday Magazine issue of Sunday, July 18.

Every merchant who is interested in good advertising, and all progressive merchants are, should note particularly this splendid example of publicity. In addition to the attractiveness in illustrating, the advertisement tells an emphatic story which should be carefully considered by every retail merchant as well as by every consumer.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, St. Louis, July 14.—The Browns looked like they had been struck by a cyclone when they appeared on the field this afternoon and they wondered if the wind storm engendered by the Red Sox would drop to a zephyr or whether it would continue to blow.

Manager McAleer was hard pushed to decide on a twitter for to-day's game. He figured on feeding left-handers to the Speed Boys, but the way they hammered his southpaws yesterday made him want to change his mind.

Lake was likewise hard pushed to select his pitcher, as he had already used up his best selections. He had Burchell, Pape and two others warm up for his inspection. Ray Collins, the University of Vermont left-hander, joined the Red Sox squad to-day, and may get a chance to finish out if the Boston boys get a good lead on the Browns before they leave town.

The Red Sox were hot after the St. Louis team again to-day. They want to annex every game now.

The AMERICAN is the great Home paper.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, July 14.—Determined to get even with the Cubs for the double defeat handed out yesterday the Doves lined up with the Chicago team in the third game of the five-contest series.

It wasn't a very bright outlook at the start for the Cubs seem to have a jinx on the Doves and win consistently from the lowly Bostonians. Manager Chance did not play in yesterday's game on account of the extreme heat, and let Del Howard perform at first. It's pretty tough on Del to have to work on days like these, but all the other fellows have to do the same.

The weather to-day was hotter than yesterday, for the sun beamed out in sweat-producing style. The players suffered a great deal and were only kept from a seance to quit the game by a light off-shore breeze.

BASTILE CELEBRATION.

NEW YORK, July 14.—French residents of New York are celebrating to-day as the "Fourth of July" of their nation, and this evening fetes and entertainments will be held all over the city. To-day is the anniversary of the fall of the Bastile and the liberation of France from the tyrannical rule of the nobility.

CUT TELEGRAPH TIME CHARGES

After to-day the charge for the time of filing a telegram is not to be made by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies, in accordance with instructions received from New York by the Boston officials to-day. This action anticipates the law a few days which makes the same provision. This law goes into effect July 19.

HUNTING FOR SPIRITS—The greatest riddle that confronts the spirit hunters is explained in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

CURTISS HAS FINE FLIGHT

NEW YORK, July 14.—Glenn H. Curtiss of Hammondsport, who is to represent America in the aeronautical carnival near Rheims next month, and who is practising with his aeroplane on the Hempstead Plains, near Mineola, L. I., to-day made a splendid flight of four miles, remaining in the air about seven minutes.

Curtiss made his flight shortly after 9 o'clock. Curtiss's landing was accomplished without the slightest difficulty, his landing was necessitated by the fact that three of the five bolts which held his propellers in shape had been broken by the jarring of his motor.

DRAPER NAMES COURTS BOARD

Governor Draper to-day appointed the following committee to investigate into and report upon the causes of delay in civil cases which come before the courts of the State: Robert M. Morse, of Boston, chairman; William C. Wait of Medford and Charles D. Barnes, Jr., of Hingham.

FIND BODY OF MAN IN MYSTIC RIVER

The body of an unidentified man was picked up to-day in the Mystic River near Lawrence & Wiggin's wharf, Charlestown. It was that of a man thirty-five years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing 165 pounds. The man wore a blue sack suit, white cutting shirt with blue stripes, turn-down collar, blue four-in-hand scarfpin, blue underwear and black laced shoes.

TAKAHIRA NOT TO RETURN TO AMERICA

TOKIO, July 14.—It is said here in well-informed circles that Ambassador Takahira will not return to his post in Washington. He probably will be succeeded by K. Uchida, at present representing the Japanese government in Vienna.

VAHEY TO MAKE FIGHT FOR GOVERNORSHIP ON DIRECT NOMINATIONS

Direct nominations will be made an issue next Fall, however, if I am the Democratic candidate for governor, for I shall have it incorporated in the platform and make my principal fight on that question; then if Governor Draper defeats me by a larger majority than last Fall I shall be willing to admit that direct nominations are not as popular as I think they are.—James H. Vahey.

Senator "Pat" McCarren hurried back to Brooklyn early today on a mysterious mission which none of his colleagues now here studying direct nominations would discuss. The hearing at the State House went on for its concluding session, and all the New Yorkers will return to-night or to-morrow.

Senator James H. Vahey was the first man to be questioned by Judge Knapp, and after he had said that he favored the extension of the direct nomination system to include the governor and all State and municipal officers and United States Senators, Mr. Knapp asked:

"Would you favor the election of court justices by the people?"

Mr. Vahey at first said that he did not care to express an opinion, but on being pressed said:

"I do not believe in the election of judges by the people. However, I do not believe in appointing judges for life, but would prefer a definite terms of years. As a lawyer I have a great respect for the courts, but I would not favor the election of the justices by the people."

Several men whom the commission had expected to hear could not come. Professor Munroe of Harvard, ex-Representative Luce and ex-Mayor Fitzgerald sent their regrets, as did some members of the Finance Commission. Mr. Fitzgerald was one whom Senator McCarren asked especially to come to the hearings.

Mr. Vahey addressed the gathering, in part, as follows:

"I am a firm believer in the principles of direct nomination, and am in sentiment with Governor Hughes in his effort to rid politics of control by party bosses and rest the power of nominating public officials where it belongs—with the people. The Democratic platform in Massachusetts last year declared for direct nomination and the Democrats in the Legislature, almost to a man, voted for a direct nomination bill.

"I advise the extension of direct nomination to the Governor and all State officers, city officers and even in towns for the election of selectmen and school committees. Ultimately, we should have United States Senators nominated and elected by a vote of the people.

Raps Senator Lodge.

"The election of United States Senators by the people, however, is not wanted by machine bosses. Such men as Senator Lodge in our own State, whose term expires in 1911, prevent the extension of direct nomination, fearing for their own political safety. It was through Lodge that the bill for direct nominations was killed after it had passed the House of Representatives at the last session.

"Political machines do not desire to have the people make nominations direct. Machines thrive when they can usurp the power of the people. However, it is commendable to see so many Republicans in Massachusetts joining the Democrats in favor of direct nominations. One great difficulty that the advocates of direct nominations meet is the attitude of public service corporations.

"These people control the Republican conventions and plan for that control years ahead. They also control some Democratic conventions, and they have nearly control of the Legislature. They want political power kept from the rank and file of the people.

"As a general thing the principle of direct nomination is opposed by the rich and by machines, and supported by the opponents of machine control, men who have no money. Fully 90 per cent. of the Democrats of this State believe in direct nominations, as do a large number of Republicans.

Believes People Favor.

"I believe the people, if the question could be submitted to them, would pass the direct nomination bill by a big majority. But the Republican machine is so strong that it will not allow the matter to get before the people."

Another feature of Massachusetts politics, he said, which is due to the convention system, is the Republican practice of selecting candidates for Governor six years in advance. There are in the Republican party many men capable of being Governor of this State, but who haven't the ghost of a show under the convention system, since them a direct nomination system and they will be pleased to make the contest.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Suffragettes in Prison Scornfully Rejected Food.

LONDON, July 14.—The suffragists who were sent to Holloway Jail on charges of disorderly conduct while attempting to present a petition to the Premier, Mr. Asquith, are following the tactics inaugurated by Miss Dunlop, and, in addition to refusing to eat, decline persistently to change their street clothes for the prison garb. The rules of silence also are ignored, and, in short, there has broken out a general revolt against the attempts to treat them as ordinary criminals.

Dickens's Chair Brings £74.

LONDON—The favorite chair of Charles Dickens, in which he was photographed many times at Gadshill, was sold at auction at Sotheby's yesterday for £74. Esdaile, a dealer in rare books, was the purchaser. The price was £74, and there was but one other bidder for the chair, a Mr. Hunter, and says he does not care whether he resells it or not. He also bought several autograph letters on literary subjects at prices very moderate prices. A copy of the original edition of a little volume fathered by Alfred and Charles Tennyson jointly in 1827 brought only £3.

$2,025 for Shakespeare Bust.

LONDON—A statuette of William Shakespeare, recently discovered, was auctioned at Sotheby's rooms to-day, bringing $2,025. The work is considered "the finest Shakespeare" time and is attributed to Gerard Johnson. It was probably the original model for the Westminster Abbey monument of the great dramatist.

Lucania Stops at Fishguard.

LONDON—While the Cunard line officials in England have refused to admit officially the intention of the Pennsylvania Railroad as a landing place for passengers and mails, the Lucania adopted the plan last night, landing a portion of her mails at Fishguard at 7 p. m., afterward proceeding to Liverpool with the rest of the mail and the passengers.

Hawaiian Outbreak Is Ended.

HONOLULU—County Sheriff Jarrett rounds the Japanese out of the sugar plantation as ended. After his release from the mill by deputies from Honolulu he placed five strike leaders in jail. All the other laborers returned to work, and a majority of the extra police were sent back here.

Consul-General Rubles Stricken.

VIENNA—The American Consul-General at Moscow, Mr. Rubles, was stricken with a sudden illness when on the point of leaving for America. He was conveyed to a sanitarium, where he was operated on successfully.

Britain Likes U. S. Horseshoes.

LONDON—Secretary of War Haldane denies the rumor that horseshoes bought in the United States for the use of the British cavalry were unsuitable and thrown into the scrap heap. He says that no complaints against the shoes were received.

J. P. Morgan Hurrying Home.

LONDON—J. Pierpont Morgan has arranged to sail for New York next Friday on the Celtic. There is some curiosity among his friends as to the reasons which caused him to alter his plans, which contemplated a much later return to America.

72 Poisoned by Ice Cream.

TOLEDO, Spain — Seventy-two guests who sat down at a private dinner in Toledo were poisoned by the ice cream served them, and to-day the condition of the majority is described as serious.

Sultan's Brother Is Dead.

CONSTANTINOPLE—Prince Suleiman, a brother of Sultan Mehemmed V., died to-day of heart disease.

174 Plague Deaths at Amoy.

AMOY, China—There were 174 deaths from the bubonic plague and 36 deaths from cholera here.

WRIGHT FAILS TO MAKE AIR FLIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Orville Wright made two unsuccessful attempts to maneuvre his aeroplane in the air at Fort Myer. The small tree of the field and the unfavorable direction of the light wind blowing at the time are largely responsible for the failure of both flights.

On the first trial the machine rose a little more than ten feet and on the second trial a height of about twenty feet was attained. In the latter trial Mr. Wright failed to stop his air screw before making the landing, and the machine, in scraping against a little knoll, broke the crossbar between the skids.

COW QUITS GRAZING TO DIG POTATOES

ATHOL, July 14.—Nobody ever heard of a cow digging potatoes until Walter Pettis, an Athol farmer, brought out a story of that kind, and now he is trying to get a patent on the cow. The other day he turned his cow into a meadow to graze, but instead of keeping on the grass the cow went through the fence into a field of potato patch. There it began to roll and kick selecting hills containing potatoes for its picking.

At the first attempt the animal kicked seven fine potatoes out of one hill. This seemed to please it, and it continued the work and dug about half the potatoes in the patch.

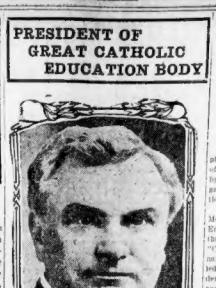
POSITIVE LEON LING WAS MURDERED

NEW YORK, July 14.—After making a thorough investigation to-day of a report that Leon Ling was alive, and was being kept in hiding in New Jersey by white missionaries, special police detectives declared there was no foundation for the story. No definite trace that Leon Ling has been obtained since the body of Elsie Sigel was found, and it is generally believed that he was murdered when the girl was killed.

HAD NEW "CON" GAME.

George Howard, whose home town is Utica, N. Y., was sentenced to four to six years in State Prison by Judge Harris in the Superior Criminal Court, his home adjudging the prisoner to be a common and notorious thief. Howard's conviction in this county was the result of about twenty-five complaints from holders of insurance policies, who alleged that he had introduced them to a new "con" game.

PRESIDENT OF GREAT CATHOLIC EDUCATION BODY



Right Rev. Dennis J. O'Connell, D.D., Archbishop-Coadjutor of San Francisco.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL IDEALS DEBATED AT CONVENTION TO-DAY

Boston College Hall was the coolest place in New England to-day, with plenty of wide open windows, protected outside by generous shade trees, when the delegates to the Catholic educational convention began its second day's business.

At 10 o'clock the Rev. Edward F. X. McSweeney of Mt. St. Mary's College, of Emmitsburg, Md., opened the session in the college department with a paper on "Co-ordination of Colleges with Seminaries." The discussion on the paper was led by the Very Rev. D. M. Gorman, president of St. Joseph's College, Dubuque, Ia., and the Very Rev. L. A. Delurey, O. S. A., president of St. Thomas' College, Villanova, Pa.

The Rev. Charles D. Mackasy, S. J., of Georgetown University, read a paper on "The Value of Strict System in the Management of Studies and Discipline in College." The Rev. Matthew Schumacher, S. S. C., and the Rev. Patrick J. Dillon, A. M. were the other debaters.

The Parish School section began its program with a paper on "English in the Elementary Schools," read by the Rev. Jeremiah J. Smith of New York city. The arguments advanced by Fr. Smith were discussed by the Rev. John F. McNichols, S. J., and the Rev. F. J. McCormack.

"School and Home."

A paper on "School and Home" read by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Oechtering of Fort Wayne, Ind., was discussed by Thomas A. Mullen of Boston and Brother Angelus.

One of the most interesting sections of the whole convention is located in Room D. It is called the "Deaf Mute Section" and is devoted to the education of children who can neither speak nor hear. Brother H. Gaudet submitted a valuable paper on "Educational Facilities for Deaf Mute Boys in Canada." Rev. Thomas Coakley of Pittsburg, Pa., read a paper on "Caring for the Deaf in the Diocese of Pittsburg."

The features of the college department this afternoon is a paper on "A Typical Latin Hour with Pupil and Teacher," by Rev. Joseph A. Hickey of the order of St. Augustine, and a paper on "The Latin Curriculum," by Very Rev. F. A. Purcell, D. D.

A meeting of all teachers of the elementary schools attending the convention was held under the auspices of the Parish School Section. The Rev. George B. Ryan, supervisor of schools of the archdiocese of Boston, presided.

In the parish school section was also presented a paper on "The Problem of the Backward Child." The paper was read by its author, a Sister of Charity from Nazareth, Ky.

"Vocal Music and Its Place in the School Curriculum" was the title of a paper by a Sister of Notre Dame.

"Duties of Principal."

In the Superintendents' Section a paper was presented by Brother Philip on "The Duties of the Principal." "Relations with the School; Relations with the Pastor; Relations with the Teachers; Relations with the Parents," was read by the Rev. Jeremiah Kelly and discussed by the Rev. O. B. Auer and the Rev. James T. O'Reilly, D. D.

This evening at 7:30 there will be a business session and election of officers of the association for the ensuing year. At 8 o'clock a public meeting will be held in College Hall under the auspices of the College Department.

ELKS BOOST BOSTON FOR 1911 SESSION

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—The one hundred merry Reuben Kings who arrived yesterday are boosting Boston hard for the grand lodge session in 1911. In the party were Lawrence H. Sullivan, past grand exalted ruler; Thomas H. Dowd, chairman of the Los Angeles committee, and other prominent Elks. A royal welcome was extended to them at the station and on their arrival at the Lankershim. Mr. Dowd, acting as spokesman, said:

"We arrived in Los Angeles a hundred strong, including the ladies. It was the largest delegation that ever left Boston to attend a convention west of the Mississippi. The first thing we did on arriving was to flood the entire city with buttons boosting Boston for the convention in 1911. At the grand lodge session to-day shouts for "Boston in 1911" were received with thundering applause. Thousands of buttons were distributed among the delegates. The 1910 convention will be in Detroit."

Sullivan as Paul Revere.

"One of our features in the big parade will be a historical pageant representing the 'Spirit of '76.' The ladies in the party will be gowned as colonial dames. The pageant will be led by Past Exalted Ruler Sullivan, who will ride as Paul Revere."

Lawrence H. Sullivan, past exalted ruler, said:

"The re-union will be held in Boston in 1911. Of this we are assured. Since the delegation left here, we have been boosting every effort in that direction, and yesterday after the meeting of the grand lodge we can say with positive assurance that Boston will be the entertainer in 1911.

Delightful Trip to West.

"The trip to California has been delightful, and the entertainment here has more than equalled our expectations. The Boston delegation has been royally entertained by Boston and Boston has enjoyed the trip here."

R. D. Sinclair said:

"I want to tell the local lodge in Boston that we have been doing work out here in Los Angeles, and we feel confident that we have won a victory for Boston and for the traditions and culture."

J. T. Sammis of La Mars, Ia., was elected grand exalted ruler. Nearly 1,500 members attended the session of the grand lodge to-day and yesterday.

To-day the visitors are entertained at Long Beach. It is estimated the event has attracted 70,000 visitors to the city.

Jacobs Sees Harmony.

Massachusetts has several herds of Elks. Among the number is Arthur J. Jacobs of Haverhill, district deputy for Massachusetts, northeast. Mr. Jacobs said he hoped the next Grand Lodge session could be made more harmonious in the future.

"The big row here which Boston lodge is building," he said, "and the candidacy of Mr. Keliher for the office of grand exalted ruler in 1910, besides the fact that Boston is going to give St. Louis a hard fight for the convention the following year, mean, I hope, that petty jealousies will be forgotten and that the Grand Lodge and the lodges will be out out by the brotherhood in the meetings."

Charles J. Bernet, the official delegate of the Melrose lodge, said:

"Never have I seen anything like the reception the Elks of this city have put up for their visitors."

HILL TO PLEAD STEEL CASES

Arguments will be heard to-morrow afternoon in the Suffolk County Superior Court by Judge Harris on the motion filed by District Attorney Arthur D. Hill that a date be set for the trial of the Boston agreement steel cases. The district attorney desires to have the cases tried in September.

One of the questions to be decided by the judge who tries the cases is whether the cases of the twenty or more defendants will be tried jointly or separately.

The indictments all grow out of the work done by the Finance Commission. It is alleged that twelve leading steel firms, through their agents, conspired to defraud the city of Boston by collusive bidding on bridge and structural steel contracts.

PAROLED THRICE, AGAIN TURNS THIEF

Three times paroled from the State prison at Charlestown, George E. Swain of Wilmington will be returned to serve out the remainder of a twenty-year sentence, with possibly an added sentence, if the State police can find him.

Swain is now suspected of a series of horse thefts in Tewksbury, Lowell and Manchester, N. H. Horse stealing was the crime which frequently led to his arrest, and finally earned for the distinction of being an habitual criminal. He has varied horse stealing with passing worthless cheques.

Swain is fifty-eight years old, and has spent more than half that period in penal institutions.

ENDS HIS LIFE AND SHOOTS HIS BRIDE

NEW YORK, July 14.—Edward J. Holmes, twenty-four, died in Presbyterian Hospital to-day from a pistol shot wound in the temple which he received late last night at his home, No. 405 East Eighty-fourth street. At the same time his bride of four months, Lillie Heimus, received a shot through the neck. Mrs. Heimus is in the Presbyterian Hospital, and her condition is so serious that she has not been told her husband is dead. The police believe Holmes shot his wife and then turned the revolver on himself.

BABE KILLED IN A FAMILY FEUD?

FAIRFIELD, Me., July 14.—The body of John Laski, the two-year-old son of Stephen Laski, was found in the Kennebec River. The boy had been missing since Saturday.

The father claims that he has had trouble with another man and that the child has disappeared this man told him he would lose his son.

This conversation took place about 10 o'clock and the child was missed an hour later. The man who is alleged to have made the threat remains located and is said to have left town and gone to Boston.

GIRL BRAVES STORE FIRE TO SAVE CASH

Miss M. Weber, twenty, was nearly overcome by smoke while saving the contents of the money drawer during a fire in her father's little store at No. 988 Tremont street to-day. She was sweeping off the sidewalk when the cover of the coal chute flew off and flame and smoke belched forth. Plunging into the smoke-filled store, she got the contents of the money drawer, staggering to the open air, where she fell in the arms of a policeman. The fire was confined to the cellar, and did little damage.

STOCK ASSESSED TO BUY 35,000 CARS

PITTSBURG, July 14.—The Pennsylvania Railroad is about to place orders for 35,000 cars at $1,000 each, the money to be raised by the sale of stock instead of bonds. If so a total of $100,000,000 stock will be issued. Most of the cars will be of the steel gondola pattern for hauling coal, ore and limestone, while the balance will be boxcars with steel underframes. About eighteen months will be required to complete the orders, which will be divided between the Cambria Steel Company, Pressed Steel Car Company, American Car and Foundry Company and the Standard Steel Car Company.

NEW HOME FOR AGED IS OPENED

To-day is removal day for the Mt. Pleasant Home for Aged Men and Women from its old home in No. 3 Aspinwall road, Dorchester, to the remodeled Williams estate, No. 59 Elm Hill avenue, corner of Ruthven, Roxbury. The association in charge of the home, of which Frederick J. Emery is president and Mayor George A. Hibbard, treasurer, has spent $50,000 for the estate and $8,000 in improvements.

Albert Metcalf, senior member of the Dennison Manufacturing Company, is the founder if the institution and the honorary president of the home assisted in the work. The furnishings were all removed from the old home and installed in the new, the nineteen inmates not being considered to be removed until to-morrow morning, when Mr. Metcalf's large touring car will be used for that purpose.

With twenty-eight rooms in the new house the association can accommodate forty inmates, whereas nineteen was the limit at the Dorchester home.

As a mortgage of $34,000 has been placed on the new home the association intends to hold a lawn party soon to raise funds.

PANIC MAKES WHEAT $1.29

NEW YORK, July 14.—There was wild excitement in the Chicago wheat pit to-day and on July contracts jumped five cents a bushel over the closing prices of yesterday, making a new high record of $1.25 a bushel. The sharp rise was due to covering by short traders, who took alarm at reports that in the Southwest there was much wet weather that would rust the wheat and cut down the crop. There was a rush of scramblers to cover, with very few offerings of sales. The excitement was but faintly effective on the stock exchange, prices not being materially depressed.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The scare of July shorts in wheat which carried the price up to 125⅝, in Chicago forced it to 129⅛ here, each a new high record. Late months advanced almost to the previous high record.

WOMAN SEEKS DIVORCE TO SOLVE TANGLE OF HUSBANDS

"William Smith's Little Finger Worth Whole Body of Frank Greenidge," Declares Wife of Two Men.

"I'll Wed My Second Husband Again When I Get Decree, for We Love Each Other and He Is Kind."

"I wouldn't give my second husband's little finger for my first husband's whole body."—Mrs. Ada Greenidge-Smith.

Mrs. Ada Greenidge Smith, Cambridge woman who has two husbands.

Wrathful at incorrect reports that she would return to live with Frank Greenidge, her first husband, Mrs. Ada Greenidge-Smith of Cambridgeport said to-day that she would apply for a divorce from Greenidge in order that she might wed William Smith, whom she married last September thinking Greenidge was dead.

The woman, who has innocently been the wife of two men, has separated from her second husband till the tangle straightens out. She is doing everything she can to keep within the law and to show her good intentions. She is lodging now at No. 10 Berson place, Cambridgeport, with her three-year-old baby girl, Gladys. The two elder children, Donald and Louise, she has placed in care of relatives. She is going to work to support herself as though she were a single woman. She said to-day:

First Married in 1893.

"In the first place I would like to say that the articles in other Boston newspapers —not the AMERICAN—purporting to be interviews with me, in which I was quoted as saying that I was going back to my first husband, were untrue. I never said such a thing, and talked to no newspaper men to that effect.

"I shall enter action for a divorce from Frank Greenidge in order to marry William Smith, my second husband.

"Frank Greenidge was cruel and abusive to me. In my suit for divorce, which I shall file as soon as I can get a lawyer, I shall give four grounds for the action.

"Frank Greenidge did not support me and the children. Finally I went to see a lawyer about two years ago to have him brought into court for non-support. He heard about it, went to a lawyer, signed a paper agreeing to give me $10 a week and then disappeared. I did not see him for two years, till he appeared last Saturday night.

"I supposed he was dead. Relatives of his, who would have reason to know, as I supposed, wrote that he was dead. I believed myself a widow.

"Dead" Husband Appears.

"After I believed my husband dead William Smith began paying attention to me. I believed I could receive his attentions legally as I thought myself a widow. Mr. Smith was and has been kind and loving to me and to the children. When he asked me to marry him I accepted him. We were married on September 28 last by the Rev. William L. Clark.

"We went to housekeeping at No. 80 School street, Cambridge, and were very happy. The children loved their second father, who is a kind-hearted, steady and reliable man.

"Last Saturday night, when we were all at home on School street, in came my first husband. It was a terrible shock to me, of course. He began to make trouble. He threatened to have me arrested for bigamy. We had a bad time of it. Finally he went away.

"Mr. Smith and I immediately decided we should separate till the matter was straightened out. He has left Cambridge in another part of Cambridge. We stored our furniture. I came here to Bowdoin place with baby Gladys, leaving the other children in the relatives for the time being. I shall go to work to earn money for myself and the children.

"Mr. Smith is acting just as he should in the matter. Of course, he is in a very difficult position. Both he and I are only anxious to do what is right. But I will not live with Frank Greenidge again, and I will re-marry Mr. Smith if I can do so legally sometime. I love him, and he loves me. I wouldn't give my second husband's little finger for my first husband's whole body."

42,000 CIGAR MAKERS RAISE GOMPERS FUND

In Boston and all over the United States to-day the 42,000 members of the Cigar Makers' International Union begin to pay their 10-cent per capita assessment for the injunction defence fund.

This fund is being raised by the American Federation of Labor to be used to defend President Samuel Gompers, Vice-President John Mitchell and Secretary Frank Morrison, who were adjudged guilty of contempt of court about one year ago by Judge Daniel Thew Wright in Washington.

At present President Gompers is touring Europe making a study of the progress of trades unionism there. In September he is to attend the British Trades Council Congress in England.

SULLIVAN STILL FAVORS PLAN NO. 2

Chairman Sullivan of the Finance Commission denied to-day that he had changed his opinion relative to the two plans of the amended city charter and reiterates his approval of plan No. 2. His statement follows:

"The statement in a morning newspaper that I have changed my opinion as to Plans No. 1 and 2 and that I now favor Plan No. 1 is inaccurate. I am as strongly in favor of Plan No. 2 ever and have never stated otherwise. Since my appointment to the new Finance Commission I have refrained from discussing the relative merits of the two plans, but in view of the misleading report concerning my alleged change of opinion, it seems proper for me to re-state my views. The convention and primary systems of nomination are parts of the party system of government. For national and State elections the convention system, in my opinion, is the best system of making nominations. In city elections neither has produced the best results; but the nominations made in conventions seem to be to have been far better than those obtained through the primaries. Neither seems as well adapted to a non-partisan scheme of government as Plan No. 2, which was recommended by the Finance Commission, and of which I heartily approve.

3 MONTHS FOR WIFE-BEATER

For eating his wife, Mary, and giving her a black eye, Peter P. Lougue of No. 33 Wapping street, Charlestown, was to-day sentenced to three months in the House of Correction by Judge Bragg in the Charlestown District Court.

"This blackeye is the result of a beating which my husband gave me, Your Honor," said the woman, "It is not the first one he ever gave me, either. He would put me any time he felt like it and he has often knocked me down and kicked me. He has not worked since last Christmas, and has done nothing toward my support or the support of my three children. I had to go out washing and earned $1 a week. With this money I managed to buy enough food to keep myself and children from starving.

"My husband would come home at times and get nearly all the food I had bought for the children. He has also threatened to kill me."

CHURCH MUST OWN CITY TO RULE NATION

President Camp of the Seabury Society spoke again to-day before the Episcopal conference in St. Paul's Church, in Tremont street. His address took the shape of strong words of advice to the laity in behalf of church extension in our cities. He said.

"The church must possess the city or it will not possess the nation. There are problems now which the church in the New England village never dreamed of a few years ago. A system of extension that will answer for the village will utterly fail in the suburbs of a city of a million people. Shall we favor large parishes or small ones? Is endowment a good or an evil?

"The man who will not leave his apartment and his newspaper for public worship —what shall we do with him?

"The appalling fact that people live in only seem to kill religious zeal and also bar out effectively those who would keep such zeal alive.

"Laymen are coming forward and solving these problems. They are bank cashiers, lawyers, business and professional men, and they are giving their Sundays to this kind of work of restoring the energy of the church in right directions.

"The real problem to-day in the West is not for money, but for men. Locate in those growing towns a few trained laymen, like what those conditions are inspiring and any weak parish can be made strong.

"Ought a man who has worked hard all the week to give part of his day of rest to church work? Ought a man, tired from a day's work, to go out at night to help others who perhaps do not desire to be helped, but would rather remain in their sins? The answer is that men do, after working hard all of the week, and all of many days, voluntarily take up burdens of many kinds and bear them. In the city where I work and sometimes worry there are 40,000 clubs and lodges. If New York has that number, Boston must have one to fifteen thousand. Clubs and lodges take time and money. The call of the church is to a higher service and a higher reward."

In St. John's Chapel, Cambridge, this evening a missionary policy for the Sunday school will be outlined by the Rev. W. H. Gardiner, chairman of the missions committee of the Sunday School Federation.

CRITICALLY ILL, WIFE CALLS TO LOST HUSBAND

Fusing a dangerous surgical operation, the critical condition of which is uncertain, Annie J. Kane of No. 26 Summer street, Charlestown, is to-day anxiously seeking to find her husband, James J. Kane, who disappeared three years ago, because of fears their three young children might come to want in the event of her death.

Ever since James Kane, who was a motorman for the Boston Elevated, left his home, Mrs. Kane and her three children, Agnes, nine years of age; Edward, seven, and Herbert, five, have lived with Mrs. Kane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murphy.

Mrs. Kane has been forced to give up work because of serious illness and she must soon undergo an operation. She is trying to find her long-missing husband so that the children will not be thrown upon the world, in her parents are both aged. Kane was a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen of this city, of Charlestown, Grove Hall and Jamaica Plain lines.

TWO SAILORS LOST IN FOG

The fishing schooner Boyd & Lee, Captain William Goodwin, came to her berth at T Wharf to-day with her flag half-masted because of the loss of two of her crew, Harry Larkin, forty-five years of age, and Edwin Goodwin, eighteen, both of Palmer, N. S.

The men had put off in a dory Monday morning while the schooner was off the Nantucket Shoals to set their trawls. Other men were setting trawls around the vessel, when a dense bank of fog rolled in from the ocean while Larkin and Goodwin were two miles away from the schooner.

The schooner's fog horn was sounded and all of the fishermen but the two rowed back through the fog. All day long Monday, Monday night and all yesterday the fog horn was sounded from time to time for the missing men. Yesterday the schooner cruised all over that part of the sea in vain. It is feared they were caught in one of the treacherous currents made near Nantucket by the "tide rips" and carried far to sea.

SHIRTWAISTS NOW DRAPE MOTORMEN

NEW YORK, July 14.—Motormen on the Second avenue surface line have become things of beauty. They will no boy while the hot weather lasts to many who ride on cars and to small boys along the route. For the motormen are work ing without coats and wear dark blue flannel shirt waists which, if hung on a manikin before a dry goods shop, would be labeled "Very neat and tasty." When the motormen appeared in their waiting room at Ninety-sixth street in the morning a notice informed them that each must get immediately a shirt waist and a black necktie to wear with it. Boys on the sidewalk yelled "Get a coat!" at motormen. "Say, Mamie," cried a big chap on a three-horse coal cart to a young motorman, "you'll be wanting to vote next."

EASY TO WIN 10 WOMEN AT A TIME, SAYS POLYGAMIST

"Don't Be Soft or Tender to Make a Woman Love You," Advice of Johnson, Who Boasts of Conquests.

That the first wife of the ten or a dozen whom Christian Johnson, alias John Madson, married was Mrs. Mary Drown of Springfield, whom he met through an advertisement in a Boston newspaper, was admitted by the man who holds the present day record as a bigamist.

Johnson, who is sixty-five years of age, knowing that he had run to the end of his remarkable career of deception, actually boasted to the police of San Francisco, where he is held a prisoner, that he had deserted wives and otherwise deceived women in almost every State in the Union.

He says that Mrs. Drown was the first victim of his long and successful matrimonial campaign. He advertised himself as a wealthy ranch owner, and when the woman replied Johnson went to Springfield and married her. Two days later, after securing $800, all she had, he deserted the woman in New York. She returned to Springfield only to die as a result of her grief.

Made Love to Ten at a Time.

In Johnson's confession he told how he had sometimes made violent love to ten women at a time, never mixing the threads of the different stories he told them, and was able to wheedle money out of nearly every one of them.

Johnson's latest wife was Mrs. Catherine Hoene of San Diego. They married on June 15 and he says he deserted her on June 6.

It was through the clever detective work of Miss Minnie Cather, who got up a correspondence with the professional bigamist, that he was finally arrested and placed under arrest.

"I found women were marriage-mad," said Johnson to the police.

"I advertised for a wife and at least 200 women applied by letter to marry me. I simply couldn't help getting into this entanglement. The women were more to blame than I am."

Johnson met Mrs. Henrietta Leopold in San Francisco when he rented a room of her. She was taken sick and he cared so devotedly for her eleven-year-old daughter, Regina, that later he had no trouble in inducing her to marry him when he represented himself to be a wealthy ranch man living just outside Los Angeles.

He got $500 from her on the pretence that he would buy two horses for his ranch and go there and make everything ready for the widow and her daughter to join him. That word never was sent to Mrs. Leopold.

Two Wives Meet.

Johnson had called himself John C. Anderson to the widow. She complained to the police, and that day Minnie Cather, a drummer, called on her.

"You Anderson's wife, too," gasped Miss Cather. "Why so am I."

Here she showed a letter from Anderson to her calling her, "My dear little wife."

"He deceived us both dreadfully. Let us put him in jail," she suggested. Then the police got busy and arrested the much-married Johnson. They found that he had married Mrs. Trelheway, and no telling how many other women, as well as that he had got hundreds of dollars from women all over the country, including Mrs. Drown of Springfield, who, when he posed as John Madson, he married in first.

"I am not really as much to blame as these marriages make it appear," said Johnson. "I was led into them unwillingly. I had loved once and in vain. I longed for the love of some good woman to end I finally advertised.

"Why did I marry at all? Because I was a fool and saw the phantom of all fools. The police are trying to make it appear that I have left wives behind in Toronto, Cincinnati, St. Louis and other cities. This is not so. My record has always been clear, and I have never been in trouble before.

"I came to San Francisco about two years ago for my health. I did not decide to marry then. My experience with women has disappointed me very much.

Loved Once and Lost.

"I loved but once in my life, but fate grimaced at me and dealed me the girl of my desire. This girl is now dead, but her spirit haunts me and makes all other women appear ugly and ridiculous.

"All women are nuisances. They affect generosity to the men they love, but in their heart of hearts they know this to simply a trick to win affection.

"I am not a hypnotist," says Johnson. "But I only have to meet a woman a few times and I know just how to talk to her.

"The women I met fell in love with me after I talked with them only a few times. I have found it did not pay to be soft and sweet with a woman. Treat her a little harsh and be a little distant, and she will come to you. If I saw a woman that I really liked, I made up my mind I would make her fall in love with me, and it was very seldom that I failed.

"Once started on the high road of getting money from women, I continued to dupe them, and I did not marry these that I could get money from without so doing. Indeed, it was only where it was impossible to get money otherwise that I married them.

"My advice to women who want to marry is to never marry through a matrimonial agency. You never can tell who you are going to meet.

Don't marry a man who talks too sweet. Marry a business man, one that will talk business always.

Polygamist's Rules for Love Making

I am not a hypnotist, but I have only to meet a woman a few times and I know just how to talk with her.

"I would also warn women against marrying a man who talks too sweet. Marry a business man, one that will talk business always."

"Johnson had me completely fascinated," said Mrs. Leopold. "I can never trust another man. All my lodgers thought the same as I did about him, and when he asked to return after he had got my $800 I was the most surprised woman in San Francisco.

"When we were married he bought two rings, one for me and one for my daughter, Regina. I wanted to buy new clothing, but he told me that it would be useless to go to the expense as nothing but white clothes were worn in San Francisco. He was such a polished rascal, in fact, that he made me lose my senses completely."

SMOKESTACK FIRES STORAGE BUILDING

Excitement was caused in the market district at noon by a fire on the roof of the storage warehouse of the Quincy New England Provision Co., No. 24 North street. A number of wooden buildings which adjoin were saved by District Chief B. Cash and Fireman John McDonald, who played a hose on the roof and kept the blaze confined until the department arrived. The damage was about $300. The fire caught from the smokestack.

SALEM EDITOR GOES TO JAIL; NO EDITORIAL

An editor cannot write editorials without something to write them on and more than he can make bricks without straw.

This accounts for the following explanatory article which appeared in the editorial columns of the Salem Gazette yesterday afternoon:

Editor Howard is now in jail. As no writing material has been furnished him as yet, he has been unable to prepare us with copy for this evening's editorial.

Below this explanation stretched an expansive paper, showing what editorial space Editor Howard would have filled if he had had some copy paper to write on.

Alfred Howard, who says he is "editor and candidate for Mayor" in Salem, went to jail yesterday afternoon in default of $1,000 bail. He is charged with criminal libel by Alderman Michael J. Doyle. Editor Howard told the court he would not ask any one to go on his bond as he might wish, at some future time, to criticise that person editorially. The court declined to let him go on his own recognizance, so he was committed. According to his explanation, the jail will be supplied with copy paper, doubtless not having been used extensively for editors, poets, publicists and other "literary fellers" up to date.

The case comes up in court again next Friday. Till then there may be no editorials in the Salem Gazette, unless Editor Howard's office boy smuggles some copy paper into his chief or unless the jailer hits some out of the contingent account.

In his paper Editor Howard has awaited publication and dared them to sue him for libel. Alderman Doyle finally took him at his word.

MME. LEBARGY TO WED PERIER'S SON

PARIS, July 14.—Simone Reuds, better known on the French stage as Mme. Simone Lebargy, formerly the wife of the comedie Francaise actor, M. Lebargy, will be married on Saturday to Claude Casimir-Perier, son of the former President of France. He was cited as co-respondent in the divorce proceedings brought by M. Lebargy.

WATCH-WARD IN BIG FIGHT ON GAMBLING

The Watch and Ward Society of Boston has extended its field of activity to embrace the entire State and is now conducting a crusade against slot gambling machines in the western part of the Commonwealth. For the past week its representatives have quietly been investigating conditions in Holyoke. As a result thirteen search warrants were issued in Westfield unknown to the chief of police. In Holyoke Twelve machines were seized and eleven warrants sworn out. The news has caused consternation among the keepers of coin machines in other cities.

The machines against which complaints were made are said to be those where ancient pieces are used and cards revolve upon presentation of a hook. Cigars are given for certain combinations.

'MILLIONAIRE KIDS' STARS AT BASEBALL

NEWPORT, July 14.—The "Millionaire Kids" of Newport have organized a baseball team. Although they may not be world beaters, they have succeeded in this of being the wealthiest aggregation of ball tossers ever to trot out on a field. All told, the aggregate wealth of the members of the "Millionaire Kids" represents more than $100,000,000 and the combined total has fingers of both hands.

Candidates for the team, of course, were plenty, and after some days ago, the entire Summer colony here turned out to cheer them on in their practice. The game is better left unprinted. The members of the team are under the age limit from the degree in automobiles and carriages, attended by men in livery.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., is the captain of the "Millionaire Kids."

Young Vanderbilt, besides being a good ball player, is very popular with the players and the "fans." Other members of the team are Waldo Whitney Warren, Jr., Francis Mallory, Joey Harriman, Stuyvesant French and a number of others.

SKIPPER TELLS WHY HE FIRED ON FRENCHMAN

GLOUCESTER, July 14.—Schooner Senator Gardner, commanded by Captain Vincent Nelson, which attracted so much attention by firing upon a French steam trawler on the fishing grounds, arrived here to-day with a fine fare of 250,000 pounds of salt codfish.

When asked if it was true, as reported, that he fired upon the French fishing steamer for destroying his trawls, Captain Nelson replied that it was.

"What caused you to do such an act and on the high seas, and upon a vessel of a nation with which the United States is at peace?" was asked.

"High seas or low seas, it made no difference to me, for I was cooked up over the construction of my fishing gear, which caused me to leave the fishing ground and put into a provincial port to replenish it, causing a delay of several days in the best fishing season.

Called on French Skipper.

"You can say that I went on board of the French fishing steamer No 61, and had a consultation with the captain, calling his attention to the way he was destroying the gear of American and Provincial fishermen, and those of his own nationality by dragging his beam trawl among them, sweeping everything before it, but he did not give me much satisfaction, only to say he could not tell where Americans set their trawls, and supposed not more than one mile and half from their vessel.

"I informed him that my trawls were more than two miles from my schooner and that the French steam trawlers were sweeping the bottom around them but a short distance from the vessel.

"Why do you make complaint, when Massachusetts has the best trawler steamer, Spry and the Canadian government also has one subsidized, quarrels the French captain of the steamer Wren. We came out there to fish, and no one is entitled to monopolize the whole ocean, and again, we have a right to fish whichever way we choose.

"But," I said, "you have no right to destroy our gear and break up our voyages."

Opens Fire With Rifle.

"I shall not do so if I know it," replied the French skipper, 'but don't know where your trawls are set."

Captain Nelson then left the French steamer and returned to his own vessel, determined to wreak vengeance upon ocean pirates, as he called them. He again destroyed his trawls.

The next day, he said, one of these steam trawlers ran close to him, droped his net and steamed around them and destroyed $300 worth of gear.

He was infuriated at such action, brought a loaded rifle on deck, and at close range fired at the Frenchman's two half-dozen shots. This was effective, for the Frenchman heeded the warning and steamed away.

KELIHER 'RELEASED' FROM CONGRESS NINE

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Congressman Keliher of Boston is not slated to shine on the diamond after all. The Congressman, who was reputed to be some player, was to have taken part Friday in a game between picked teams from the Republican and Democratic forces. But the Bay Stater owned up that he was shy on speed when it came to burning the path between the bases. He decided, accordingly, that he must be excused from the nine.

The Democratic team will be captained by Representative Kincaid of New Jersey, O'Connell of Boston is the Massachusetts member.

SEARCHING FOR INSURANCE MAN

PAWTUCKET, R. I., July 14.—Philip N. Tessier of this city, employed as a life insurance agent for the Prudential Life Insurance company up to two weeks ago, has disappeared from his home here and nothing has been heard from him directly for almost that length of time. Tessier is under forty years of age and as there is apparently no reason for his departure his family believes that he must be demented.

EMPEROR MEETS NEW CHANCELLOR

BERLIN, July 14.—Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, Vice-Chancellor of the German empire, was formally installed in the office of Chancellor to-day, succeeding Prince von Bulow, retired. The Kaiser took farewell of former Chancellor von Bulow in the palace to-day, and shortly afterwards received the new Chancellor. They walked together in the imperial gardens, while the crowds on the outside looked on and cheered lustily.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg is a college friend of the Emperor. They were fraternity brothers at the Bonn University at Bonn, and during the entire reign of William II. the Bethmann-Hollweg office has advised His Majesty. But he has shown a distinction to accept high office. He is a man of reserved and thoughtful habits, and has been called the "philosopher statesman."

He is a tall man with a long face emphasized by a small, dark, pointed beard. Emperor William often has found rest and comfort in Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg's repose of manner and agreeable conversation, and he is one of the few frequenters of the court whose bearing toward His Majesty is natural and simple.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg is of Jewish origin. The Bethmann family left Holland two centuries ago on account of its religious and settled in Frankfort. It was the men engaged in banking. His great-grandmother married John James Bethmann, who added his wife's name to his own. His grandfather was the first member of the family to enter public service. He became a member of parliament and a professor in the University and received a patent of nobility for his learning. Later his son made a name for himself in the Diet and became active in the constitutional agitation of fifty years ago, and four years later he was appointed to the Liberal Cabinet as Minister of Justice.

Prince von Bulow's successor is fifty-three years old. He began the studied law, always the first step on a public career, and was appointed assistant judge. Before he was thirty yes, old he was made District Governor of Oder-Havelin, and later became Province's President of Potsdam. For three years there he saw much of His Majesty, and the two took long walks and rides together. It was then that Bethmann-Hollweg got out with His Majesty in an old tweed suit of sober cut, and he always selected a quiet horse.

POISON KILLS YOUTH, BRIDE DISAPPEARS

GARDNER, July 14.—Stanislaus Janiszewski, who figured in a romantic marriage a short time ago, is dead, and the secret of his mysterious death, whether he died of accidental poisoning or whether a deadly drug was left where he would be sure to get it, goes with him to the grave. Another feature of the case which puzzles the police to-day is the fact that his bride of six weeks, who was Miss Pearl Stafford, a music teacher, is missing. Janiszewski died while Chief of Police Shay and Dr. J. B. Donnelly were trying to get from him the secret which he had said he would tell them.

On account of the suspicious circumstances Chief Shay is conducting an investigation, and has also reported the matter to Assistant District Attorney James A. Stiles.

"We know that Janiszewski died of poisoning by corrosive sublimate," said Chief Shay, "but whether he innocently mistook them for pills or whether they were intentionally left where he would get them is a mystery."

Janiszewski took the tablets a week ago and after he was brought to the hospital he told his father that he used them in a glass of water under the impression that they were laxative pills. The dead man lived with his wife in Hagen's Block. In one of the nurses at the hospital he said his wife's family did well and went to a medicine case for some pills. I found a box containing three tablets. I took them to my father's home at No. 5 Moran Street, put them in the water and drank it. Then I began to feel very sick."

Janiszewski was delirious at the office of Dr. Donnelly, where he was taken by friends. He told practically the same story as was given the nurse. Dr. Donnelly sent for Mrs. Janiszewski later in the day and questioned her. She declared there was no such box in the chest. She showed a small vial supposed to hold tablets, but Dr. Donnelly found only twenty-one.

Mrs. Janiszewski left town the day her husband was taken to the hospital.

The dead man was twenty-two years old. His father demands an investigation.

YOUNG VICTIMS OF QUAKE WHO TO-DAY LEFT FOR JAMAICA

Lillian and Sidney Johnson, children of Mrs. M. H. Johnson.

FAMILY THAT FLED QUAKE IS AGAIN UNITED

Happier than they have ever been since they were made refugees by the great earthquake in Jamaica on January 14, 1907, Mrs. H. M. Johnson and four children sailed away to-day on the United Fruit Company's steamer, Admiral Farragut, for Kingston, where they are to make their home with Mrs. Johnson's son, Roy. The family is to be reunited for the first time since the West Indian disaster.

For one year and four months following the earthquake, Mrs. Johnson and her little family lived in tents. The father and husband is an invalid in Mexico, where he has lived seven years. Mrs. Johnson and her four children came here in 1908 on the 50 pounds the British government allowed her for transportation.

Struggled Against Odds.

For a time they prospered here. The two smallest children were placed in school while the two oldest girls worked as stenographers. A son in Panama sent money to pay his mother's rent of the little flat at No. 18 Dana street, Roxbury. Then he sickened and was forced to return to Jamaica.

Bravely the woman and the children struggled against great odds. One of the girls lost her position and the family was down to actual want. They were too proud to beg and were reduced to dire extremities when the Rev. Arthur H. Gordon of Cambridge found them and reported the case to Superintendent Oliver C. Elliot of the Boston Industrial Home.

"If we could only get back to Kingston we would be all right. My son there could care for us in his home," said the mother to Superintendent Elliott.

"We'll do our best to reunite your family," promised the superintendent. And the sailing of the happy mother and her children proved how well he kept his word.

The United Fruit company's steamer to transport the family for $85, about half the actual cost of the voyage.

Grateful to Friends.

As Mrs. Johnson, Lillian, aged sixteen, and Sidney, aged thirteen, were bidding a group of their friends good bye to-day, the women said:

"While we are glad to leave Boston we will always love it for the good, kind people we have met here. We shall never forget their warm hearts and how they helped the suffering in their hour of deepest need."

QUAKER CITY MEN SEE BOSTON BATHS

After a tour of inspection of Boston's playgrounds, the Philadelphia Playground Commission declared them the best in the country.

The Philadelphia Commission is here making an investigation of the different systems for playgrounds adopted in various cities.

The members of the commission were the guests of Acting Mayor Brand, accompanied by William A. Boudrot, secretary to the Mayor, and School Committeemen Lee and Shattuck. To-day they are inspecting the city bathhouses and gymnasiums

GREECE TO WAR AGAINST TURKS

BERLIN, July 14.—The Vossische Zeitung declares that war between Greece and Turkey is inevitable. Turkey having informed the powers that the situation is so strained that nothing can prevent a conflict. The trouble is over Crete, nominally under Turkish government, but so densely populated by Greeks that little attention is paid to the Turkish government by the inhabitants.

The Turks' action in driving Greeks off the Turkish frontier, several being killed, was precipitated by the reports of the outbreak of war by Greece is momentarily expected.

MAKE LAST EFFORT TO SAVE COLLIER

NEWPORT, R. I., July 14.—One hundred and twenty-five men are to-day making a desperate effort to save the stranded United States collier Nero from the reef here where she grounded some ten days ago. Forty-five iron workers arrived to-day to construct the sheet iron bulkhead which is being built for the Nero. When this is completed and the twelve-inch pump, which broke the other day, is repaired, all of the big pumps will be started forcing air into the collier's ballast tanks. No time must be lost, for Nero is already badly strained, and she pounds heavily at night. Should a storm come she would break up.

BIG SALE NOW ON AT HOUGHTON STORE

There is a big sale now in progress at the store of the James A. Houston Company, Washington street and Temple place, where there is a vast stock displayed at prices said to be the lowest quoted this year. The stock includes a great variety of "warm weather merchandise," and there are many bargains which will surprise great interest on the part of shoppers.

New and attractive lots of goods are placed on sale every morning. Every article, no matter how low a price is quoted, carries with it the guarantee of the James A. Houston Company, which is one of the most reliable in New England.

The management says regarding its sale: "The very first event of its kind in the history of retailing. We tell you that every purchase means an actual saving, but in absolutely no instance do we mention value or former price."

The officers of the international union have indorsed the appeal. It also is favored by the officers of Boston Local No. 4.

NEWPORT MANSION IS SOLD TO CONSUL

NARRAGANSETT PIER, July 14.—Canonchet, the beautiful country place of former Governor William Sprague and Mrs. Sprague of Rhode Island, and one of the show places of Narragansett Pier, has been sold to Venceslao Borda, United States consul at Porto Rico, who married Mrs. Avis Wharton, a sister of Mrs. William Sprague, within the past year.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON DANGEROUSLY ILL

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 14.—Governor John A. Johnson is ill at his apartments in the Aberdeen Hotel and all his engagements for the week have been cancelled. He has undergone three operations for appendicitis and intestinal troubles and his present illness is due to a recurrence of his old troubles.

AGED PAIR DIE SAME DAY.

PROVIDENCE, July 14.—Married forty-five years, Mr. and Mrs. James Donahue of this city died within eight hours of each other. Both lie dead to-day at their home, No. 13 Bond street, and there will be a double funeral.

URIU PRAISES YANKEE NAVY

NEW YORK, July 14.—Vice-Admiral Baron Uriu and the Baroness Uriu set sail on their way from the Mauretania to-day. The Baron was in splendid spirits and was free in his expressions of delight at the hospitable treatment accorded him in America.

"This is the greatest of countries," he said. "I am in love with it. It is wonderful in every respect. The navy is one of the greatest on the seas. I saw the big battleship Connecticut, and found it a wonderful example of naval shipbuilding. I believe that the navies of the world is assured by the friendship between Japan and America."

WILLIE K. NEAR DEATH IN AUTO

NEW YORK, July 14.—Alone in a big 100-horse-power racing automobile, running at thirty miles an hour on the Long Island motor parkway, Willie K. Vanderbilt, Jr., performed an almost unbelievable feat of good driving and cool courage that saved him from being crushed to death in the most dangerous sort of an accident.

On the third lap, while going at eighty to ninety miles an hour, the big steel mechanism, released from the crank shaft, plunged upward and struck against the front seat.

The blow flung Mr. Vanderbilt upward and forward. First his breast struck against his steering wheel, then he shot head first out over the sleeping hood of the machine.

As his body turned and his feet struck the sleeping hood, he still clung with the one hand to the wheel. He had turned almost a complete somersault and had not been shaken off.

"The HILTON IDEA"

Talk No. 2

In which the HILTON IDEA of Advertising and Merchandising is explained.

¶ Publicity for Hilton Stores has always been based upon the idea of producing permanent good will rather than daily sales.

¶ We have aimed first to provide clothes for men which would prove of advantage to the purchaser, and then to present its merit truthfully — through advertising—to the public. Our advertising is addressed to that thoughtful public which judges price by value—and which cannot be tricked into reversing the process and judging value by price.

¶ Your conception of this house to-day, to-morrow and next year is more important to us than your purchase to-day.

¶ We would rather our sales of to-day should be the result of your settled convictions regarding the house and its clothes, based upon our past advertising, than upon a hasty response to any urgent appeal we might make to you in the name of a "bargain" or "special sale."

¶ To get you into the store and sell you something TO-DAY is not the aim of our advertising. To have you feel that this is the best and safest and most desirable place to come to WHENEVER your wants in clothes arise IS the aim of our advertising.

¶ The contrast is between wanting to sell you what WE want to sell, when WE want to sell it—and wanting to sell YOU what YOU WANT TO BUY, or OUGHT TO HAVE, when you want it or need it. The difference is, we believe, both in your favor and ours. It is seldom that any merchant can truthfully offer merchandise at less than its REAL VALUE. When we have such an opportunity we present it and give the reason for it.

¶ The same principle governs our advertising that governs our manufacturing and our selling—to render a definite, genuine and permanent public service—believing that there is always a public willing to pay us a just return for such service. Our belief has been justified by our notable and evident commercial success.

¶ And yet we believe that only a start has been made. We believe that our sphere of utility—therefore our success—will be limited only by our ability to present the Hilton Idea in the right way to the right public.

¶ Our advertising aims to present it in that way—to that public. We ask you to read our advertisements—so long as we succeed in making them interesting—and to support our efforts if you believe in them.

Respectfully,

The HILTON CO.

MATTEAWAN KEEPER SAYS THAW IS SANE

him: "The attendants here believe that I am sane and I will soon be free."

Hunting for O'Reilly.

Deputy Attorney General Clark sent a man to New York yesterday to subpoena Dan O'Reilly. The process server stood all night in front of O'Reilly's house, but the lawyer had gone yachting. Under the present status of the case at White Plains it will be impossible for Evelyn to give testimony against her husband until O'Reilly testifies.

Mrs. Mary Murnane, matron of the Poughkeepsie jail, also testified that Thaw appeared rational.

A request was made to Thaw's lawyer by Mr. Clark that he agree to allow the evidence produced at the second Thaw trial in New York be read into the record. Mr. Morschauer said that he would consult with his client. The State's attorney asked the court about the agreement to allow Doctors McDonald and Flint to examine Thaw. The court explained that this had already been agreed to, but stipulated that he be not questioned on subjects prior to the shooting.

Sane, Says Physician.

Ben R. Horton, an attendant in the Poughkeepsie jail, and Edward T. Robinson, formerly assistant jailer, testified that Thaw always appeared to be perfectly sane. Dr. Pearly H. Mason, a physician of Peekskill, who met Thaw on a trolley car between Tarrytown and Peekskill about a year ago, said he studied Thaw from a medical standpoint and found him rational.

Lawrence J. Creery, a keeper in the Tombs, said that while there Thaw acted rationally.

Charles McCartney, a former attendant at Matteawan, who had entire charge of Thaw, testified that on several occasions Thaw quoted from Ovid and Euclid. There was no question in the witness's mind but that Thaw was sane. The witness emphatically denied that he had supplied Thaw with whiskey.

TAFT BACKS M'CALL IN HIDES FIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 14.—A majority of the tariff conferees, it is reported to-day, are for the duty on hides, but Representatives Payne and McCall are standing out for free hides. They are said to have the backing of the President, and the indications are that there will be the same fight for free hides which ensued during the session of the conference report on the Dingley bill twelve years ago.

Senator Aldrich said to-day the duty on hides will remain, as he pledged his word to certain western Senators in the way of concessions to secure their support for a number of amendments reported by the Finance Committee.

The speaker of the House has been cooperating with Aldrich in the Senate to defeat downward revision. His affront to the President was not generally forgotten.

It was known that Representative Reynolds J. Hill of Connecticut was selected, by seniority, to a place on the Conference Committee, but he is a downward revision man, and he was not appointed.

It now develops that President Taft, some days before the conferees were named, asked Mr. Cannon in a letter to name Mr. Hill. Instead, the Speaker put on Fordney and Calderhead, who are both ardent high tariff advocates.

That Mr. Taft should not resent the snub keenly is impossible; and it is held in certain quarters that it will go far toward persuading him to get down the big stick and brush the dust off preparatory to getting into action.

Representative Murdock of Kansas, one of the leading "insurgents" of the House, said to-day that the conferees who voted to place crude petroleum and its products on the free list will not accept the Senate amendment providing for a countervailing trouble. Senator Aldrich is now pressing the Senate amendment, but Speaker Cannon has entered the fight.

MRS. BROKAW WINS IN LEGAL SKIRMISH

NEW YORK, July 14.—Supreme Court Justice Jay Cox, in Patchogue, L. I., granted $1,000 a month for support and $5,000 counsel fees to Mrs. Mary Blair Brokaw, wife of W. Gould Brokaw, the noted clubman and sportsman, pending a decision in her suit for separation on the grounds of abandonment and cruel treatment. She asked for $2,250 a month alimony and $15,000 counsel fees.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CURED

A Lady Will Send Free to any Sufferer the Secret which Cured Her.

Since a child I was distressed and humiliated by an unwelcome growth of hair on my face and arms. I tried all the depilatories, cosmetics, liquids, creams and other rub-on preparations I ever heard of, only to make it worse. For weeks I suffered the electric needle without being rid of my blemish. I spent a great deal of money on various things in vain, until a friend recommended a simple preparation which succeeded where all else failed.

This simple remedy enabled me permanently to find entire relief from all trace of unwelcome hair, and forever end my embarrassment. It is simple, safe, sure, and can be used privately at home, without fear of pain or blemish. It makes the electric needle entirely unnecessary.

I will tell in detail full particulars to enable any other sufferer to achieve the same happy results as I did privately at home. All I ask is a two-cent stamp for reply. Address CAROLINE OSGOOD, 117 E. Vaughan BTd'g, Providence, R. I.

MRS. JAYCOX QUITS STAGE; SEEKING SON

NEW YORK, July 14.—Mrs. Edna Jaycox, who left her beautiful home in Bridgeport, Ct., last October, because her husband, Ernest, accused her of writing letters to Charles L. Holmes, a married man, while she was visiting the Rev. Grant L. Schaefer in Bradford, Vt., has quit the footlights, her dream of making an independent living having come. She is now secluded in Bridgeport at the home of her father, Noyes E. Ailing, president of the Ailing Rubber Company.

Mrs. Jaycox first tried nursing in New York, and finding that occupation too hard she became a member of "The Blue Mouse" company. Now she is tired of the stage.

Her presence at her father's house became known through a peculiar incident. Her little son, whom she has not seen many weeks, passed the Ailing home. Mrs. Jaycox saw him from behind closed shades and she rushed out into the street and clasped him to her arms. The little boy was taken away from his mother and ran finally got away from his mother and ran home, where his grandmother's home, where he has lived since his mother went away.

While Mrs. Jaycox was visiting at the home of the Rev. Mr. Schaefer in Bradford, Vt., last October, it is alleged that Mrs. Holmes of Bridgeport intercepted a letter which Mrs. Jaycox had written to Mr. Holmes. Mrs. Holmes showed the letter to Mr. Jaycox and to Mrs. Jaycox's mother.

Following a family council a telegram was sent to the Rev. Mr. Schaefer to bring Mrs. Jaycox home to Connecticut and to escort her the entire way. Mrs. Jaycox slipped away from the Rev. Mr. Schaefer at Springfield. She was later found in Hartford, Ct., but refused to go to her husband's home.

GIRL'S BODY IN A PAUPER GRAVE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 14.—The identity of a young woman found dead in the West Haven swamp by a party of picknickers, promises to remain an unsolved mystery. Dr. Barnett, the medical examiner, to-day ordered the body buried at the town's expense, all efforts to find out who she was having proving futile. The fact that her clothes, which were of rich texture, were partly scattered over the shrubbing lot, has led to the belief that the young woman met with foul play. The body may have been moved to the lonely spot and hidden in the underbrush. The body had been exposed to the atmosphere for at least two months.

WOULD FORFEIT CENTRAL RIGHTS

NEW YORK, July 14.—A. H. Walker, counsel for the Public Service Commission, declared one of the most valuable franchises of the New York central ought to be forfeited at a hearing before the commission to-day on the company's application for permission to operate a 22-hour motor carriage. He said the franchise for the Spuyten Duyvil & Port Morris road should be forfeited because it stipulated that the road should run to Port Morris, while it has never gone there.

FOURTH OF JULY DEATH TOLL 114

CHICAGO, July 14.—Five more deaths due to lockjaw as a result of the Fourth of July celebration were reported throughout the country to-day, bringing the total of deaths due to the observance of the day, from all sources, up to 114.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 14.—John Keating and Patrick Conroy were instantly killed and August Sudka was fatally injured when a fast freight train on the Chicago & North-western Railroad struck a handcar and buried the men against the girders at Central Park avenue and Kossie street to-day.

JUROR: I LOVE MY ALPACA, BUT OH YOU FANS!

Men serving on juries throughout the higher courts of Suffolk County to-day are envying their jury brethren in Judge Robert O. Harris's session of the Superior Criminal branch since the judge ordered alpaca coats for their comfort during the heated spell.

Word of the alpaca luxury of this lucky panel was spread around in the other jury sessions, and the envious ones said:

"Gee, but that's pretty nice. I love my outing suit, but oh, you alpaca coat. It's hard on a man sitting in a jury box in a stuffy courtroom with the thermometer up to 90 and the humidity 10 or 12 per cent. above normal. Wish my judge would order up an alpaca for me."

Judicial dignity forbids shirtsleeve effects while court is sitting. Even the newspaper reporters have to be properly clothed. Some of the court reporters, familiar with temperatures at Prospect square, prepare themselves for it by buying coats of alpaca or seersucker or similar gossamerlike material when Summer begins.

But the average juryman is unprepared. Judge Harris, pitying the sweltering panel, ordered a set of one dozen alpacas of assorted sizes, much to the joy of the jury.

"I desire the jurymen to be comforta-ble," said the kind-hearted judge, "and I have ordered these coats at the expense of the county treasury. But if there is any demurrer to the bill I will pay it myself."

Only fear of contempt of court prevented the jury from giving three cheers for Judge Harris then and there.

But now that the entering wedge has been driven, the question arises as to what the jurymen may wish next.

If alpaca coats, why not silk shirts and hair thread or silk hose. A court officer might be appointed to see that the jurymen was dressed with full consideration of the hot weather and to order any necessary changes.

Iced lemonade would be appreciated. The United States Senate spent several thousands for lemonade the present session. A jurymen is as good as a legislator any day.

Electric fans would help a heap, of course. In fact, so many comforts may be called for by jurymen now that the Suffolk county commissioners may have bills like this to audit:

"Jury expenses in trial of John Doe, ireman, charged with extortion——

Boom gallons ice cream.....$4.50
Iced lemonade.....6.00
Ice water (free).....
Iced fruits.....5.00
Cracked ice.....1.00

Note—Defendant acquitted. $16.50

ALABAMA LEADS IN INCOME TAX MOVE

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Representative Clayton of Alabama has wired Governor Comer of that State, asking that the legislature, which will be called to convention on July 27, proceed to immediate consideration of resolutions for a corporation income amendment to provide an income tax. Alabama may be the first State to cast its vote for the amendment.

WOMAN BACK, WILL REPAY MARK TWAIN

NEW YORK, July 14.—Mrs. R. L. Ashcroft, for many years the private secretary of Mark Twain, arrived to-day from England on the Cunard steamship Carmania. She was met at the pier by her mother, Mrs. Lyon, who immediately started with her for Redding, Ct., the Summer home of the humorist.

"I am back in America," said Mrs. Ashcroft, "to try and settle the difficulty that seems to have arisen over my property that Mr. Clemmons gave me. An attachment has been placed on it for $4,000. I am mighty sorry that there has been any publicity in the matter, for there is not a thing that I would not do to avoid adding to the sorrows of Mr. Clemmons. I believe that he had nothing to do with this attachment. It may have been his daughter, Jean, who caused it to be made. I have the strongest of affections for her, but she may have been ill advised."

Mrs. Ashcroft, a pretty little woman, with abundant diplomacy, said that she had left her husband in London pending her settlement of the trouble at home.

"You know," she said, with engaging frankness, "Mark Twain gave me that ill-fated diamond pin. I borrowed money from him to build it up and make repairs that were necessary. I haven't paid the money back, but it will be paid back in due time. I can't pay it all now, but we will pay every cent.

"I was Mark Twain's secretary for seven years and I would not hurt him in any word or act for anything in the world. I am sorry that this thing has happened and I believe that I can settle it. That is why I am here."

GARCELON WILL QUIT POLITICS

After serving as House chairman of the Committee on Election Laws of three sessions of the General Court, and thereby attaining a high place in the esteem of the Republican party and his associates in the Massachusetts House, William F. Garcelon of Lynn has decided to retire from political life.

The demands of his law practice and his duties as graduate manager of athletics at Harvard, Mr. Garcelon says, are so pressing that he has no time for public life.

BOSTON SHOPS PROVE MAGNET FOR MISS TAFT

BEVERLY, July 14.—"Well," said Miss Helen Taft, "I suppose I must prepare for the round gauntlet."

Her little electric runabout was waiting under the porte-cochere of the Mrs. Levi Leiter cottage and a dozen society girls of Boston, New York and Washington were grouped to bid her farewell.

"Keep up your courage," said Miss Eleanor Shaw. "You know they can't really hurt you."

"Remember Miss Alice Roosevelt went through it, and nobody ever bothers her now," said Miss Margaret Thomas.

Noiselessly the little car started and moved down the winding road. Miss Taft darted glances to right and left, yet kept the car moving at a good rate of speed. Behind her the girls at Leiters' were cheering. A hundred yards were traversed in safety two hundred. Once a place where the sunlight broke through the screen of treetops and dimmited the road. The car entered the zone of light and at the same instant a tall figure arose from the bushes at the roadside. He was looking into a big black box. Click!

And the Limb Broke.

Miss Taft bent her head and threw on the third speed. Too late. "One," she said.

The car sang along through the narrow country lane which led to the main road. Behind her behind the first photographer was trudging along. Now the woods were passed and meadows appeared. The wind turned slightly here. Miss Taft allowed to make the turn and reversed quickly. In the middle of the road stood a fat, bewhiskered photographer looking at her through a camera. If she continued she would run over him. For a second she was puzzled. Here was an opportunity for revenge. No one would blame her. It would be an accident. But she was her father's daughter. She tooted her horn and said: "Won't you please let me pass."

"Click." "Certainly Madame. Pardon me." The pleased photographer lifted his hat and stood at one side. He had his picture. The grounds of the Nelson estate were almost reached. The gauntlet was almost run. There was another click. Startled she looked about and could see no one.

Miss Taft in Boston.

Helen and Robert Taft have been taken into the most exclusive set on the North Shore and from now on they will be engulfed in the whirl of summer social life. Yachting, tournaments, teas, dances and riding and lawn fetes are the amusements of the set and the engagement book of Miss Helen is being rapidly filled. Miss Taft, Robert Taft and perhaps Mrs. Taft will be present at the lawn fete of the Quincy A. Shaws at Prides Crossing on Friday, July 23d, when a bonnar in aid of charity will draw a great crowd.

Miss Taft motored in Boston in the big touring car early in the day and visited several of the department stores, making small purchases. She returned in time to get over to the Parkman estate, where Mrs. Levi Leiter had assembled about a hundred of the prettiest girls on the North Shore in her honor. There was tennis, in which Miss Taft showed to excellent advantage, after which spent an hour on the lawn.

BABY BRINGS FAMILY PEACE BEFORE JUDGE

Two-year-old Mary Ramsay, toddling back and forth between her father and mother in the Cambridge District Court to-day, brought about a reconciliation between her parents, moved them and the spectators to tears by her pathetic little efforts to help matters out, and finally was taken out happy, hand in hand with papa and mamma.

The Ramsays live on Magoun street, Cambridge. The father, John Ramsay, had his wife in court on a charge of being a common drunkard. Mrs. Ramsay, holding baby Mary in her arms, waited while her husband told his story to Judge Wolcott.

Baby Mary must have felt something was wrong between her parents. She wiggled about in her mother's arms, toddled over to her father and pulled him by the trousers. Judge Wolcott's low, cheerful flamissy started in surprise, glanced down, then stooped and picked up the little one, who climbed to the judge's knee, looked, and then smiled at him frankly.

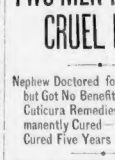
Mrs. Ramsay began to sob. Mary put her fat arms around her father's neck and kissed him, as thankful of the baby as the solemn-faced clerk, the portly officers and the attorneys and other spectators as she could be.

Ramsay began to cry and finished his testimony as quickly as he could. Mrs. Ramsay took the stand in her own defence and, after admitting that the charge against her was not justified, was discharged.

TWO MEN RID OF CRUEL ECZEMA

Nephew Doctored for Fifteen Years but Got No Benefit—Finally Tried Cuticura Remedies and was Permanently Cured—Uncle Similarly Cured Five Years Ago.

ONE CURE BY CUTICURA LEADS TO ANOTHER



"About five years ago I was burned in an explosion of natural gas. My head and face, also my hands and arms, were burned. About three weeks after, eczema set in over the parts of my body which were burned and my physician undertook to cure it by administering a solution of arsenic, increasing the dose, but without any perceptible benefit. I was gradually losing strength from the suffering and I was in a very serious condition.

"About that time my nephew told me about his experience with the Cuticura Remedies. He had eczema so severely that the blood ran down into his shoes. He suffered with the eczema for many years and had tried everything the physicians could prescribe. After doctoring for fifteen years, in which time he found no relief, he was finally induced to try the Cuticura Remedies, and they cured him permanently in four months.

"You can easily believe that I made haste to try them on his unbearable irritation. I commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I was cured in less than two months and perfectly that I have not even had a symptom of the disease since, although it is over five years since the trouble began. I give this testimonial voluntarily, without solicitation or hope of reward, except that some one seeing it may be relieved from suffering as I was." (Signed) Jamison, Indiana, Pa., Dec. 15 and 24, 1908."

For thirty years Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded speedy relief to tens of thousands of skin-tortured and disfigured sufferers from eczemas, rashes, itchings, irritations and chafings, from infancy to age, bringing comfort and peace to distracted households when all else fails.

WHOLE SPORT WORLD WANTS TO SEE JEFF AND JOHNSON BATTLE

BY TAD.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The greatest fight in the world to-day between pugilists of any weight would be an affair between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson. Press agents or other people interested in the welfare of the Los Angeles cafe owner sent out stories from Canada to the effect that Jeff would not enter the ring again.

Yesterday another statement supposed to be from Jeff said that he had not made such a remark, and to prove it would post a forfeit to box Johnson as soon as he arrived in New York. This is very sports manlike on the part of the big fellow, and shows at last that he means business.

The fight lovers want to see Jeff against Johnson. No other man in the world is an even money bet against the big black. Ketchel is too small; his fight against Papke sent him away down in the batting averages.

Al Kaufman, although as big and as heavy as Johnson, is not as clever. Outside of Jeff, Kaufman is the next best man, but Jeffries is the man we want to see.

Surely Up to Jeffries.

It is seven months now since Jeff started to find out how his condition was. He has been working daily since. He should know by this time whether he is able to box or not. No one blames him for refusing to box if he knows that he cannot do justice to himself, but all the same people on the stage drawing a big salary, and the people who pay for the privilege of seeing him to box Johnson.

If Jeff posts a substantial forfeit and Johnson covers it, then and only then, we will know that the fight is assured. It will be a great fight. Jeff might win in the round a bunch of people think, and he might go down as Sullivan did before Corbett.

The interest in the fight would be intense, and the money taken at the gate beyond estimate.

After the fight—let the world turn around again. Come on, Jeff, let us know NOW are you there, or are you not?

Says Ketch Out of Condition.

Benny Rafael, manager of Johnny Frayne, who meets young Corbett at Dorchester Saturday afternoon, writes about things in the West:

"Ketchel and Papke put up as rotten a fight as you ever cared to see. Ketchel wasn't in condition, and if Papke was half as game as the Michigan fellow he'd be champion of the world to-day. He had Ketchel staggering around the ring, bleeding and helpless, and then stalled instead of rushing in and finishing his man.

"Ketchel trained in the day time, and at night took his machine out for speed records. Coffroth was scared to death. He expected to hear any moment that Ketchel had hit a tree and that the fight was off.

"That broken hand stuff is a joke here. Everybody is kidding about it. It's just another Jimmy Britt break, that's all."

Home for Losers.

Corbett is training at Shannon's for the fight, and they tell me that he's at it hard. Shannon has had four losers in a row now: Erne, Neil, Cross and Sullivan. Glad we're not there.

Sam Harris, the man who found Terry McGovern and steered him along the championship path, says that his brother Phil is a better man than Terry ever was at the same weight.

"I watched Phil go the other night," says Sam, "and he surprised me. Terry never had the defence that his boy has. A fellow could pop Terry on the jaw, but Phillie, besides being as good a puncher as his brother, has a defence that is one hundred per cent. better. Give that kid a bit of experience and my money goes on him for a match with either Coulon or Attell, and I'll bet that the fight doesn't go the limit."

PACKEY M'FARLAND IS GOING TO RETIRE

JANESVILLE, Wis., July 14.—Packey McFarland was here this evening, and in an interview said he had signed articles for what will be his last fight. This will take place at San Francisco July 24, and his opponent will be either Lou Powell or Dick Hyland. The go will be for the twenty-round route. McFarland is now with W. J. Healy, a Chicago contractor, and the two will form a partnership, and McFarland will take up sewer contracting as a business. McFarland and Healy are now engaged in putting in a sewer 50ft at Lyndon.

BACK TO THE BUSH.

NEW YORK, July 14.—It has been announced here that Pitcher Frank J. Egan, a graduate of Fordham College, who recently joined the Cincinnati club, will be turned over to the Montreal team for development by Manager Griffith. Egan will join the Montreal club next Thursday.

FIELDER JONES BADLY MISSED BY WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, July 13.—With the Sox going "rah," the citizens of Chicago have come back awaile and recall to mind Fielder Allison Jones, the genial general of the diamond, considered one of the very greatest, who gave up his first love to devote his youth to commercial lines. This man's presence is desired at this time, and although there is not the slightest chance that he will come back from his Northwestern home, his old admirers call hopefully a summons to duty, but he passes not.

Jones played ball since he was a youngster, but his professional career began in the Oregon State League in 1903, where he broke in as a catcher and fielder. He was out West that year working as a civil engineer. His stay in this league lasted only one season, as he went to the semi-professional ranks in 1904, and joined the Corning, N. Y., team and held a position as manager for the season. He deserted the semi-pros in 1905, and made his play in the New York State League with Binghamton. His stay there was for only half a season, as he finished up with the Springfield Mass., club.

His work with the minors in the last season warranted his going to the major leagues, and the Brooklyn Nationals sought his services. After considerable diverting he signed up with the Superbas and was a member of last aggregation for five years covering right and centre fields. It was with Brooklyn he became a permanent outfielder. He had caught and played the infield in the minor league ranks.

While he was with the Brooklyn team the baseball war between the National League and the American League arose. Jones played remarkable ball and as his work with the stick, on the bases and in the field was the talk of the league. President Comiskey secured Jones' release in 1904 with the intention of getting Jones to leave the Brooklyn team and join his White Stockings. In 1904 Jones has been with the South Siders ever since and his inside play is the talk of the circuit, not only in Chicago, but throughout the circuit.

As an outfielder Jones ranked as the best in the American League in 1904, but was able to go back and come in on fly balls. It makes no difference to him where the ball goes. He is a good judge, and can get under them if they are to be reached. The success of his fielding probably is due to the fact that he is a student of the batters. He makes a study of the stickers of the opposing teams, and when a player comes to bat he takes his position in the outfield accordingly. Clark Griffith, now manager of the Cincinnati Reds, says that Jones knows more about the batting peculiarities of the men in the American League than any other of the players in the business.

Jones's best seasons with the Chicago White Sox were 1902 and 1903. The former was the only year that he hit over the .300 mark. He slumped in his averages the next year, 1903, when he hit .261, which was his highest since 1902, when he had figures of .280. He fielding has always been over .965. He made his highest mark in the field in 1903, when he went through the season with only two errors, getting an average of .994 to the close of the season. While he was with the White Sox he was always a good batter, securing no less than 70 runs a season. His highest total of hits was the 168 made in 1902, when he also made his highest mark in bits, which was 171.

Baseball News and Notes

Kitty Brandfield of the Phillies is a firm believer that the Chicago club will run away again.

* * *

Cleveland has cost owner Tom O'Brien to look over the New England League talent. All the major leaguers have been keeping up in this section trying to pick up more wonder.

* * *

Lajoie was nearly tempted to sign up Rondeau the Worcester infielder when he came to the scene from Woonsocket, but being a right-handed hitter was sidetracked.

* * *

There is some class to a team that can defeat the Detroit Tigers eight times out of eleven. That's the Athletics' record against Jennings' team.

* * *

Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the world, has made his debut in baseball, playing right end for the Springs in an exhibition game with Sequels. The big wrestler played a good game in the field, but failed to get a four base hit in his bat. His team lost, 8 to 4.

* * *

Willis Keeler will be missed by the New York fans. Donlin is a poor substitute for Willie's place in right field for the Yankees.

* * *

* * *

If Manager Carrillo of Washington had another Walter Johnson the "Lastingtons" would catch the step and surely win the pennant.

* * *

"Southpaw" Krause continues to be the winning kid of the American League hoodoo. He is developing into a great pitcher for his Athletics.

* * *

Roger Bresnahan, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, says he doesn't expect to win the pennant this year, but is building up a team for the future.

* * *

* * *

Bobby Byrne of Brooklyn and Dots Miller of Pittsburg have been given an increase in salary, which goes to prove they are getting to be regulars. They have played brilliant ball for their teams.

* * *

"Chick" Fraser, the former Cub, says that Chicago will lose out Pittsburg and again cop the flag. "Chick" would let someone else have the cards this year, for he is a fan now in every respect, one a Pirate and the other a Giant, he says.

* * *

When it comes to running bases, few may have anything on Big Bob Bescher, the Reds' young baseball outfielder. He is a class by himself.

* * *

In Pittsburg the fans and the press are knocking on what they call the attempt of Dreyfuss and Barney to "put over" the sport, since the new grounds have been opened. The bugs don't like the idea of paying for what they used to get for fifty cents, and declare that had they not stood by the team the new grounds would have been an impossibility.

* * *

What a great thing that Eastern league race is. The teams are shaken up every time that a round of games is completed. Two defeats in succession enough to send a team from near the top to a place not far from the cellar.

* * *

"Red" Murray's teammates say that he would be one of the hardest and steadiest hitters in the country if he could only get over his "Babe Ruth" idea for what Pitcher Ruth is in the box. The pitchers know this and make capital out of the impatience.

* * *

When Hugh Raymond is talking or playing baseball he is as quiet as Bill Lelivelt. How is one my stories? he spouted. Well, batters hit it to the outside and inside. I want to put them where they can't hit, using a fast and slow ball in a variety of ways to fool the batter. I use a bluff spitter a good deal, and my curve is working fine. I pretty well think I've got them so down on his curves, though. No Gray doesn't think so. He says that Hugh is a dead ringer on the inside corner and breaking out.

BAD ROADS CUT DOWN LIST OF CLEAN SCORES OF GLIDDEN TOUR CARS

By J. C. KERRISON.

CHICAGO, July 14.—Two more days of such hard driving as has already been experienced in the A. A. A. tour and some of the contending cars will surely fall by the wayside. The roads have been exceptionally poor, the driving hard, and more than one car showed signs of hard usage when they started out for Madison this morning.

Two cars displayed sprung gear wheels, and one showed a bent front axle, while in several instances springs gave evidence of the hard pounding that has been experienced since the tourists left Detroit.

But the two days of the contest such as this have heretofore brought forth more or less unhappy effects on the character, and the clean score list has been reduced greater than has been the case so far on this trip.

But three cars have as yet received black marks, and in one instance, that accorded one of the three Chalmers-Detroits, the penalization was for something which by no ways affects the running or riding quality of the car itself, but simply being for tightening of fender iron stone.

Cars Doing Good Work.

The Reo has taken a more serious nature, caused by lack of oil, while that given the McIntyre was for tardiness at controls, the latter car, with its slight horsepower, high wheels and solid tires, being on fit conditions for the hilly and mud mixing honors when it comes to a Glidden tour. Still the car is doing remarkably well, and its work is being greatly praised.

The unexpected feature is that the real competition for Glidden trophy honors lies between the Pierces, Marmons, one of the Chalmers-Detroit, which, as already stated, are 1910 models, and the same condition of affairs seems to apply to the Flower trophy contest.

Good judgment work is being performed by all the cars, and the wonder of it all is that they are holding up as they have done under the fast driving and poor road conditions experienced the last two days. No one car is showing to better advantage than another, the Pierce and the Reo

Watch Day and Winchester.

Perhaps the most experienced drivers on the run are Verdo Day and Winchester of the Pierce team, who have been on every Glidden yet held, and who have been members of the victorious teams. Naturally enemies of the motor car, but as yet no flaw they are being watched, but as yet no flaw has been found in their work.

Frank Wing, the only Boston driver in the field, is pushing the little Marmon in fine shape, and in the run yesterday averaged twenty-five miles an hour, reaching Chicago one hour and twenty minutes ahead of schedule time.

Ray McNamara, who has the chairman in charge, heads the procession with his Premier car each day, starting twenty minutes ahead of the field, but being generally caught some two hours later by H. O. Smith in one of the competing Premiers, which seem to have all the speed and power necessary.

The Chalmers, all painted blue, are generally to be found in the front rank, plowing through the mud, showing both power and speed.

Leo Hays, who once handled the Boston car in Boston, turned up on this run as a driver of a Moline, and he certainly is doing good work.

The two Maxwells in the run are going just as good and true as did the 10,000-mile car in the non-stop run in Boston. Charles Goldthwaite is driving the run-about, and he can be depended upon to bring her through in time.

The total tabilities of yesterday figured one pig, one dog and several chickens. The lost or captured consisted of a miscellaneous collection of caps, goggles, coats and empty lunch boxes, the latter all coming after the passage through South Bend, where the Studebaker Company furnished each tourist with a full three-course lunch, to be eaten on tour.

The schedule for to-day's run to Madison, 175 miles away, calls for an average of twenty miles an hour. The roads are said to be even worse than those of yesterday, and some penaltinations are anticipated. The official and press cars got away about 6 o'clock, and at 7 o'clock the competitors were off.

First came the Premiers, then the Marmons, Pierce, Maxwell and Chalmers teams, with the rest close up.

NELSON LOSES TEN-ROUND BOUT TO AD WOLGAST

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

LANGFORD GIVES BIG NEGRO BOXER A HARD BEATING

BATTLING NELSON BADLY BATTERED AND NEARLY PUT OUT BY WOLGAST

By H. M. WALKER.

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—Sturdy little Battling Nelson is still the leader of the lightweight division by grace of the fact that a champion cannot be deprived of his title upon the strength of a "newspaper decision."

At the ring of the Naud Junction Pavilion of the Pacific A. C., Ad Wolgast of Milwaukee handed Nelson as complete and decisive a ten-round whipping as any man would care to shoulder. Wolgast had a commanding lead in eight of the ten rounds, the other two sessions of slugging going down as even affairs.

The battle was a good one to witness. Wolgast met the Dane at the latter's favorite method of slugging and fought the champion to a standstill.

Nelson Battered; Wolgast Clean.

At the finish Nelson's face was a smear of blood and his lips were puffed, while Wolgast did not have a mark to testify that he had just undergone thirty minutes of the hardest kind of fighting.

The Wolgast decision was unanimous. Nelson's most ardent admirers could not claim that the battler was entitled to anything resembling an even break.

On the other hand, there was no inclination to take any prestige away from Nelson. The Dane never has been and never will be a ten-round fighter.

Although he was whipped fairly by Wolgast in the short go, there is no reason to believe that the Milwaukee slugger stands more than a fighting chance of conquering Nelson in a finish battle.

Wolgast made such a brilliant showing that his performance actually dazed the spectators, who had been given small reason to believe that Ad would stand head to head and slug from start to finish.

Nelson Saves a Knockout.

Not a knockdown featured the battle, but there were times when Wolgast rained such a shower of heavy blows against both sides of Nelson's head and body that it appeared the battle-worn champion must surely fall.

In the ninth and tenth rounds Wolgast had the crowd on its feet in anticipation of enjoying the novel experience of seeing Battling Nelson stretched out on the canvas for the count.

Under heavy punishment Nelson was the Nelson of old, never faltering, but always boring in for more of the same kind. A reading of the round-by-round description of the battle will show that during many a fifty-two-minute session Wolgast actually landed two blows to Nelson's one.

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS

ROUND ONE—Nelson met Wolgast in the center and followed his usual tactics of advancing steadily to his opponent. Wolgast put a light right to Nelson's face and took a right and left to the face in return. A ripping left reached Nelson's jaw. They exchanged body blows in a clinch, and Nelson reached the face with a straight left. Wolgast sent a right cross to the jaw in return. Even round.

ROUND THREE—They went at it hammer and tongs, Wolgast landing right and left to head and body. Wolgast then sent a light left to the face, and followed with a hard right to the jaw. Wolgast made a fight swing to the ear, landed right and left to the head, and put another left to the body and a right to the face. Wolgast showered Nelson with rights and lefts to the head, and Nelson fought back for the stomach. Wolgast landed repeatedly on the face and body. In close quarters Wolgast had all the better of the fighting, and had a big lead at the end of the round.

ROUND FOUR—Both missed right swings, Nelson being first to land, getting a left to the stomach. In close quarters Wolgast sent two swift rights to the face. Nelson's left eye began to swell in this round. They exchanged body punches and Wolgast reached Nelson's head with a left. Nelson was missing and falling short. Wolgast shot a terrific right to Nelson's stomach and then landed half a dozen rights and lefts to the face without a return.

ROUND FIVE—Wolgast continued to back away at the start. Nelson landed several effective rights to the body. In a neutral corner Wolgast stopped Nelson with a right and left to the body. Wolgast showed up in this round.

ROUND SIX—Nelson continued to force his man. They exchanged lefts in the face, and Wolgast put in two rights to the head. Nelson reached Wolgast's face with a right uppercut. Nelson forced Wolgast to the ropes, but did not land effectively. Wolgast swung left to the head and sent Nelson back, but he came on fighting hard.

ROUND SEVEN—Wolgast put a left to Nelson's eye. With head down, Nelson bored in, but Wolgast continued to land the greater number of blows. They clinched against the ropes. Wolgast landed on the head and Nelson on the body. Nelson's nose and lips were badly swollen.

ROUND EIGHT—They clinched and fought about the ring in close quarters. Nelson landed hard right and left to the face. Wolgast came back hard with rights and lefts to the body. Nelson put right and left to the head and Wolgast reached the ear with a right. Wolgast got a left to the head and then shot his right to the nose.

WHO WOLGAST IS AND WHAT HE HAS DONE IN THE RING

Ad Wolgast is a German-American by birth and was born in Cadiller, Mich., February 8, 1888. He is a little fellow, standing but five feet four inches. His right name is Adolph Wolgast. His fights, with one or two exceptions, have been fought in the West. This is the fourth year in the fighting game and he has a goat list of wins to his credit. He suffered but one reverse, when he lost a four-round bout to Young Nelson in 1906. "Battling Nelson is the first "big one" he has beaten. But no decision went with the Nelson battle.

NELSON PRAISES HIS OPPONENT

By BATTLING NELSON.

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—Ad Wolgast of Milwaukee and myself finished our little ten-round scrap. We both weighed in under weight. I did as I always do—fight all the time I'm in the ring. I tried to put him out in ten rounds, but I failed. I think in a longer fight I could put the sleep producer on Ad, but in a ten-round session it is doubtful. He is a pretty tough fighter at that.

I don't want to detract from Wolgast's ability as a fighter, but I think with a good rest I could finish him with a lot more ginger. As it was I think the fighting was about a stand off. The German did a little more holding than the rules allow, but then he is not to be censured for that. I want to say I never did pose as a short diwance fighter. As a finish fighter or over my own the Hatfield's route, a forty-two-round bout or more, I think I have proved I can step a little. Let the long-distance fighters get busy. Come on, you tough ones!

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

WELL, OUR OLD FRIEND BAT GOT his last night and got it plenty. According to the press dispatches from the Coast there was not one stingy little round that the champion could lay claim to, in spite of his much heralded offers to wager large amounts that he would lay the Wolgast boy away for keeps early in the game.

While no championship was involved and it is extremely unlikely that the Milwaukee lad could have won in a long distance fight, the fact remains that the Dane got the worst trimming of his career.

A beating such as Wolgast gave the battler last night has never been known in behalf any great benefit to a fighter and else fans predict that this is but the beginning of the end of the championship career of one of the greatest little fighters in the history of the ring.

Nelson has a good fight or two left and will lay several of them away before they sign up all over the country with chal-engers, and then keep your money in your pocket until Freddy Welch comes over here again and you will have a chance to get on a real good fight.

FRANK HEALY, ESSEX HOTEL, Boston.—No, Mutt can scarcely be called a real flesh and blood man, although he is a pretty live one, don't you think? He is a product of the brain of "Bud" Fisher, the California artist who came out at the close of the racing season on the Coast this Spring.

The Mutt pictures were first printed in the Hearst papers in California, but their big jump into popularity came after Mr. Fisher was brought East. There is little question that they are attracting more attention than any comic pictures of late have been printed in years.

Mutt doesn't really exist. Frank, but as far from being a dead one. Haven't you met a few of him yourself, and don't you know some around the Hayward race hand books?

Straight Dope, Boston American.

I made a wager with a friend that Rube Vaughn pitched a no-hit game last year and he bets he did not, and that there were only four no-hit games ever pitched in the history of baseball. Please settle the bet. How many no-hit games were pitched last season in the League in 1908, and who the pitchers were.

Henry Hertz, Dorchester.

You are in bad, Henry, and it looks as if your friend looked up the dope before getting you hooked on. The nearest Waddell came to pitching a no-hit game was when he allowed Chicago on the 4th of April. Four no-hit games were pitched in the American League last season and they were pitched by Young, for Boston against New York; Rhodes, for Cleveland against Boston; Smith, for Chicago against Philadelphia, and Joss, for Cleveland against Chicago.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Please decide a wager. A bets that a pitcher is not allowed to rub off the newness and white color of a ball during a game. B has seen them do it on numerous occasions and says that there is no rule to prevent it. Which is right?

A Subscriber, City.

A wins. Here is the rule: In the event of a ball being intentionally discolored by rubbing it with the soil or otherwise by any player. * * * the umpire shall, upon appeal by the captain of the opposite side, forthwith demand the return of the ball and substitute for it, in other legal ball, and impose a fine of $5 on the offending player.

Sport Dope, Boston American:

Is a player charged with a time at bat on a sacrifice? Is he made to go back on an AMATEUR.

A sacrifice does not count as a time at bat, but if he reaches first on an error it counts as a time at bat.

R. M. PACE, NEW HAVEN: SPRINGfield won the Connecticut League pennant last year, beating out Hartford by five points. Springfield finished with a percentage of .672, having won 84 games and lost 41. Hartford won the same number of games but lost one more, the percentage being .667. None of the other six clubs finished over the .500 mark.

Sport Dope, Boston American:

Who was the champion pitcher of the Union league in the Big Leagues. How many games did he pitch and how many did he win?

J. MERCER.

Edward Walsh of the White Sox is generally credited with the honor. He won 40 games, lost fifteen and had one tie. In addition to this he pitched in ten other games—relieving other twirlers in desperate situations when the game was in the last nine days of the season he pitched in 7 games.

LANGFORD HAS POPULAR OPINION with him—especially in the East—in his refusal to allow Ketchel to bag the big end of the purse offered by the Nevada fight promoters. Ketchel's showing against Papke don't justify this, but there aren't many who believe if Sam is convinced that a fight with Ketchel is but a preliminary for a chance at Johnson, he will take the Michigan Assassin on with any old sort of a purse division.

Here's a hope that He Ho Sam gives Ketchel $20,000 worth of inveigling—and he is most likely to do it. Langford is a negro but he's a fighter and socially ranks about as high as Ketchel. A prize fighter is hardly a society lap dog and in the battle game every man, white, black or mustard color, is entitled to a fair deal and should get it.

Let's all stand around and squeeze for the Dingo to wailing the Pole.

HUNTING FOR SPIRITS—The greatest riddle that confronts the spirit hunters is explained in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

KLONDIKE IS BADLY WHIPPED BY LANGFORD

PITTSBURG, July 14.—Sam Langford, the cyclonic heavyweight from Boston, and who holds the championship of England, demonstrated his claim to distinction among the big ones in the ring when he appeared in the windup of the boxing show at the Bijou Theatre. John Harres of Chicago, better known as "Klondike," opposed him.

If severe punishment counts for anything, Klondike should be overflowing with regrets that he was chosen. Seldom have the fight fans of Pittsburg seen a man receive a more thorough beating than that taken by Klondike tonight. Langford almost demolished the big negro from Chicago, and the latter apparently never felt it. It was a worthy show of endurance and stamina.

Jimmy Walsh of Boston and Johnny Whitaker of Cleveland met in the semi-windup. Walsh had all the better of the bout.

It has been stated that Klondike is the only man who has ever knocked out Jack Johnson. If he ever did Langford can rest easy if he hooks up to meet the present champion of the world. Small, but stocky and fairly bulging with muscle himself, Langford was a pigmy beside the tall, bulky black from the Windy City.

KAUFMAN NOW BACKS UP FROM JOHNSON FIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—Al Kaufman can't see his way clear to fight Jack Johnson before the Mission Club in August. Announcement has been to this effect by Billy Delaney, his manager. Notwithstanding the fact that Kaufman has been hurling challenges at the colored champion for several months, Delaney positively refuses to allow him to meet "Li Arthur" now.

Delaney said:

Kaufman will not fight Johnson in August or September. He will take his time and will not be rushed into a fight. When Kaufman enters the ring he will be in the best possible shape that I can put him in, and he couldn't do himself justice and fight in August or September.

Furthermore, I am not in a position to sign articles. I have promised Billy Brady, who is in England, that I'll not make any engagement for Kaufman until I have consulted him. Brady may have some other fights in view for Kaufman.

No, there will be nothing doing for Johnson now. He need not count on fighting Kaufman in August, or even in September; so that that's all there is to it.

Boxing News in Brief Form

Billy Papke states that he won close to $2,000 outside of his end of the purse by betting that Ketchel would not last the limit. Papke claims he had no trouble getting down, but that Ketchel could not stay any, and that he had to "carry" her money." It is said that Ketchel lost $2,500 by betting he would not last.

Although Johnny Payne and "Young Corbett" are both great favorites with the fight fans of Denver, the latter is the favorite in the betting. Corbett is training hard for the fight and is said to be fought at Colma, Cal., on 8th, unless otherwise. No betting has been made as to the result of the contest and there is a slim chance of tickets. If Corbett loses to Payne he will get a match with Hyland or Nelson.

Sam Wallach, manager of his brother, Leach, the pugilist, is responsible for authentic statement that Leach will in all probability fight the fighting Irishman.

Joe Berger of Dorsey and Jim Holland, the English lightweight, will battle to the main event of ten rounds at the Sharkey A. C. ring tonight.

Jack Haskins, the well known Philadelphia manager who handles Charley Pete Miller, Young Loughrey and several other boxers, says he is looking a heavyweight who thinks he can defeat Jack Johnson.

Frankie Madden will probably be substituted for Terry McGraw of Baltimore to meet Harry Scruggs of Boston in the main go at the Lenox A. C. ring of the Dry Dock A. C. at Hammels Station, Brooklyn, on the night of July 23.

Mike ("Twin") Sullivan is anxious for a match with either Harry Lewis or Jack Britton. The latter recently defeated Lewis in a ten-round bout at 145 or 150 pounds. Mike intends to return home from San Francisco shortly and will issue a challenge immediately to the winner.

Billy Papke is coming to New York. He sent a telegram to Billy Gibbons stating that he would be in town on Monday, July 19, at the Pacific Coast Club, Los Angeles, and that he would pack up his trunk and start for New York.

Joe Gallagan, the Chicago fighter who was given a decision on a foul over Young Poindexter, the Boston fighter, in a battle at Kansas City last week, has been matched to meet Harry Trendall the St. Louis fighter, for ten rounds at Convention Hall, Kansas City, on Friday night.

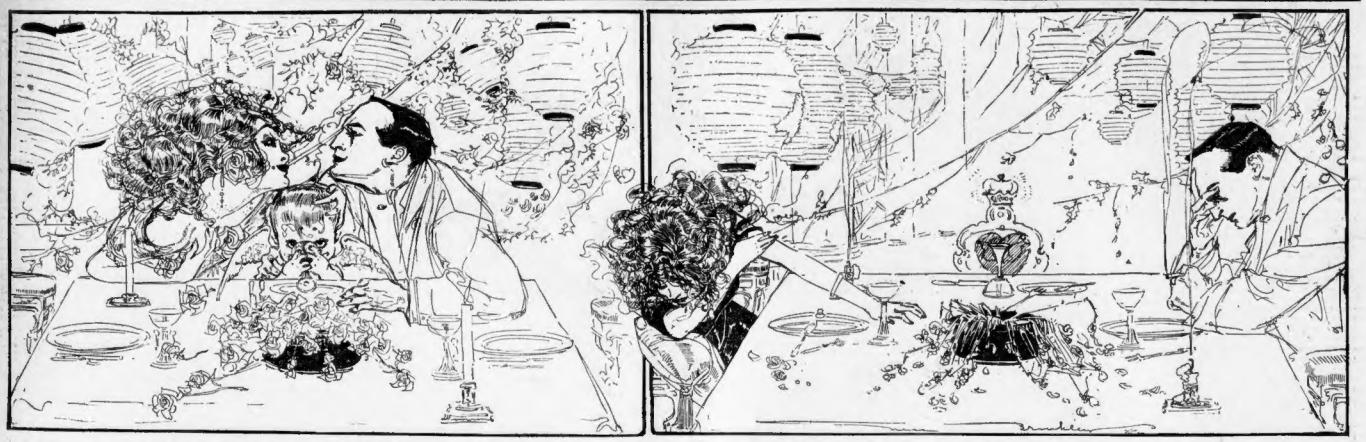
THE DOWN-TURNED GLASS

"And in the World," Says Cupid, "There Are Heaps of Spread Tables Where They Keep My Place and Wait. The Moon Always Comes, but I Never Return"

By NELL BRINKLEY



But the two that crowd close hardly-ever see—and when they do hear what Cupid is humming, they don't believe. "The man will be sullen—the women weary and despairing—and my glass will be down-turned in my place."

The Summer Girl

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO you know, I think the Summer girl is a very much abused little person.

Just because she is young and pleasure loving, people have come to regard her as light and frivolous.

Personally, I think mankind should be extremely grateful for anything so gaily light-hearted and good to look at as this same little lady.

Perhaps she is somewhat of a flirt, but then no one takes her flirtations seriously, and she not the young men with whom she flirts just as best on flirtation as she?

Just Exercising Their Lungs

Why, often this gay little person has only her two or three weeks' holiday during the entire year. All the rest of the weeks and months she must be a dingy little grub, working hard for her living, so let her be butterfly when she can.

Very often the girl who appears most frivolous and pleasure loving is the chief support of her family.

I see them on the beaches and boats laughing and talking louder than they should, but I think, "Dear little girls, you must have a chance sometimes to exercise your young lungs and to give way to your exuberance. So laugh away."

This advice I give you, my Summer girls: Do not stay too late at the pleasure resorts, and never be tempted to drink intoxicating liquors. You do not know your own self the moment you take them you know it in your flushed faces and loud, empty talk. The man who urges you to drink has no respect for you and is no fit companion for you."

Let Your Fun Be Clean Fun

This is the playtime of your life and it is only right that you should have all the fun possible.

But do not let your love of pleasure and reckless excitement carry you too far. Remember that the best and sweetest of a girl's qualities are her innocence and purity.

Be careful of the acquaintances you make, and don't go off to spend the evening with a man whom you know nothing about. There are always ravening wolves, you know, only too ready to gobble up little, unthinking, venturesome lambs.

Perhaps these Summer days will lead you to the paradise that every woman should find, the sanctuary of a good man's heart.

And it is for that paradise that you must keep your heart fresh and unfinished, my dearie.

No one objects to your little Summer flirtations.

Be good little maidens and have all the fun your hearts desire, but let it be clean, harmless fun—the kind that will send you back to work with renewed energy and a stock of health and spirits.

"Ah, Moon of my delight who know'st no wane,
The moon of Heaven is rising once again;
How oft hereafter rising shall she look
Through this same Garden after me —is vain!
And when Thyself with shining foot shall pass
Where I made one—turn down an empty Glass!"

THAT'S an old and worn song for poor little Love.

"A Wandering Jew" he is, condemned to live forever and ever, amen —and sometimes when he has grown very weary of life and the long days that stretch ahead, he stabs Us toss in the dust of the way, dragging his feet dispiritedly, and sings it.

Sometimes in the very bewildering delight of the Feast, when the world sets itself for the little play, when the moon is up and the roses swing their fragrant censers over the table cloth, the lanterns swing in the wind, and the wine is fresh in the glass and old and sweet, when the candles are lightest and brightest, and two people crowd close and ardently against him and whisper and gaze across his head, drowned in the eyes of one another, just when he holds the crystal rim of his glass against his face in its cool circle and drinks—just then his eyes, looking over the top, see the end of the story, and he buns his little song between the bubbles under his breath.

But the two that crowd close and ardently hardly-ever see; and when they do hear what's he's humming, "they don't believe!

"The moon is up and white," breathes Love, "and many times when days have slipped by, you moon, you will peer over the trellis for me and I'll not be here. The man will be sullen and gone to his end of the table—the woman who is now a girl will be weary and despairing and gone to her end! The flowers will all be dry and the candles dicty and burnt out, the cloth rumpled and the lanterns dark and scorched—and I will be gone.

"My glass will be down-turned in my place. And when I am gone I will not ever come again.

"This is an old song and I have sung it to many people and in many places.

"And in the world there are heaps of spread tables where I have once drunk and where they keep my place for me and wait, where they keep my place for me and hope I will come, but I will not. The moon always come; but I never come once I sing what a rewarded-of guest. It is very sad.

"This wine is good, but I can see over it."

Old Maids Married

BY WINIFRED BLACK

MR. G. STANLEY HALL of Clark University, says that he is perfectly discouraged about American college women.

"They don't marry," says Professor Clark, "and when they do marry they don't have children."

Well, what are you going to do about it, professor? Close the colleges for women, or make marriage obligatory to all over a certain age?

What if they don't marry?—they are not hurting any one but themselves by staying single, and I doubt if they're even doing that.

Any woman who doesn't want to marry at all, isn't the sort of woman who ought to marry at all, and the woman who is childless because she wants to be childless is saving some poor, little tyke from having a mighty bad mother.

All women are not made to marry, and marriage is not made for all women.

Did you ever see a married old maid, Professor Clark?

I have—and I have always wondered who on earth persuaded her to marry at all, when she was destined from the beginning of time to wear list slippers and slide curls and put the cut out at night herself.

The class of women who takes college life seriously is not the class of woman who marries. What are you going to do about it? Shut her up in a convent, as they did a few generations ago, or cut her hair and make her wear trousers and disguise herself as a man?

There's no common sense in marriage—it's all a delicious day dream, and it has to be, or else it isn't a real marriage at all, but just a business contract.

The woman who can't fall so desperately in love that she can't spell her own name right has no business to marry, and who are you, trying to make her change her whole nature and do something which would make her and the man who had to live with her perfectly miserable if she did do it?

Hurrah for the old maids—college or otherwise!

They've had the sense to live the life they were born for, and I, for one, wish them a thousand joys while they are living it.

The Love Time of Life

"If Youth Is Too Soon for Love, When One Has Passed Middle Age and Has Lost His Enthusiasm It Is Too Late"

By Dorothy Dix

WHEN is the love time of life?

At what psychological moment in one's existence is the heart capable of experiencing the tenderest and most profound devotion?

Is there one day, golden above all other days, in a lifetime, when alone we may be thrilled by the pseudo passion?

In a way, being in love is like having a bad cold. Every time we go through it we think it is the worst case we ever had, and that we will never recover from it. For the most part, however, we do get over it, though there are colds that end in a grippe or pneumonia, just as there are love affairs that end in a wedding, and nothing would be more interesting to know than at what time during one's life these attacks are most likely to be fatal.

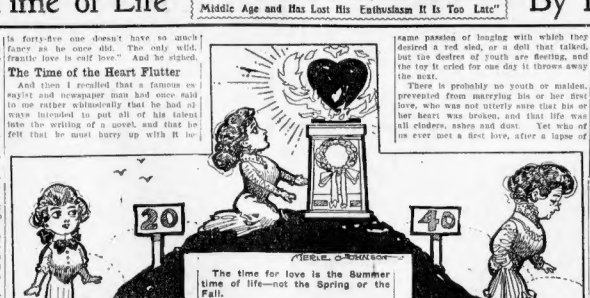
Not long ago a man was reciting to me the litany of the virtues of a young woman he was about to marry—that she was handsome, intelligent, of good family and possessed an amiable disposition. When he had finished I said:

"Oh, I hope that she will be all your fondest fancy paints her."

"Well," he replied, "you know after one is forty-five one doesn't have so much fancy to be once old. The only wild, frantic love is call love." And he sighed.

The Time of the Heart Flutter

And then I recalled that a famous essayist and newspaper man had once said to me rather whimsically that he had always intended to put all of his talent into the writing of a novel, and that he felt that he must hurry up with it be-



The time for love is the Summer time of life—not the Spring or the Fall.

Shakespeare makes Juliet, a child of fourteen, capable of the most profound passion. Romeo, and Di Vernon, and all of Scott's other heroines of lofty and heroic devotion, range from seventeen to nineteen years in age, and romance is full of boys still in their teens who did marvelous deeds of daring for love of some fair lady.

This has made us attribute to youth an ability to love steadfastly and unchangingly that it does not possess, and incidentally it had been prevocative of much unhappiness, because it has led many a girl and boy to regard their heart throb seriously, instead of looking upon them lightly, as mere growing pains that they would go over.

Undoubtedly when a boy and girl, in their salad days, imagine themselves in love, their emotions are very poignant. Nobody ever wants a thing again with the same passion of longing with which they desired it when they first talked, but the desires of youth are fleeting, and the toy it cried for one day it throws away the next.

There is probably no youth or maiden prevented from marrying his or her first love, who was not utterly sure that his or her heart was broken, and that life was all cinders, ashes and dust. Yet who of us ever met a first love, after a lapse of years, without wanting to put up prayers in the temple of miraculous deliverance?

Yet if youth is too soon for love, when one has passed middle age it is too late. The one's fine enthusiasms are gone, one's ideals tarnish, one's hope and faith chilled, and one eats for one's stomach, and marries at the direction of one's head, and love becomes merely an incident of life—not the whole show.

The real love time of life comes in the brief hour when life is at its fullest flower. Then it is neither Spring nor Fall, but Summer, with the heart, neither the immature bud nor the frost-tipped leaves of passion. With a woman this full maturity of the feelings comes from twenty-five to thirty-five years of age, and with a man from thirty to forty.

Then they have taken the measure of their own needs and desires, their tastes have formed, their characters settled into permanent lines. If they find then their soul mate, the love that springs into being between them is as imperishable as a spark of life itself. In it are merged all the strength of mind and body and heart of the man and woman, compared with this mature love, boy and girl love is but the foolish vaporings of children, and the love of middle age but lukewarm platonic friendship.

Can You Solve This Trunk Mystery?

EX-SUPERINTENDENT B——, in his reminiscences, recalls a celebrated trunk mystery which enabled him to first gain recognition as a great hunter of criminals. He trailed the suspects across New York State, and the picture shows the mysterious trunk with which he finally caught up.

It turned out that the fugitive had passed through nine towns, each of which to-day has a population of over 25,000. In those days packages were labelled with the names of the towns they passed through, and to destroy these evidences of his route the fellow scratched off a portion of each label on his trunk as he skipped from town to town.

Ex-Superintendent B—— claims that the remaining pieces of the labels furnish sufficient clews to fill out the missing letters and prove just which nine towns the criminal passed through.

Our puzzlers are invited to match their wits against the old sleuth and see if they can be equally clever in restoring the names of these nine New York towns.

One hundred prize puzzle books will be awarded among those who send the best solution. With a woman this full maturity of the feelings comes from twenty-five to thirty-five years of age, and with a man from thirty to forty.

"Pardon me," said the lady on a marketing expedition, "but are those eggs fresh laid?"

"Absolutely, madam," replied the grocer promptly. "The farmer I purchased those eggs from wouldn't allow his hens to lay them any other way."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BETTER GO SLOWLY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady twenty-two years old, good looking, and have a number of gentlemen friends who would be delighted should I let them call on me. I think a great deal of one of them, but several months ago I met a young man to whom I took a great fancy and still retain it. He is considered good-looking, and as I admire a handsome man, I naturally took a great liking to him. He tells me he thinks a great deal of me, and I like him, but I do not think he is sincere, as I am under the impression he has told that to a number of other girls and is doing likewise in my case. I have given up one of my dearest friends for him, of which fact he is aware, and for which action I think I may be sorry some day. Also when he calls he wants me to kiss him, which I absolutely refuse to do, but which he insists. Do you think my liking for him is reciprocated in any way? INDECISION.

I THINK you are foolish to give up your friends for this man, of whose love you are not at all sure. His good looks are of small importance if in his character he counts. If you doubt his sincerity you are very foolish to waste any time on him. Most certainly you should not allow him to kiss you unless you are engaged.

LEAVE IT TO THE MAN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of nineteen and would like to meet a young man who is employed in the same building as is one whom I see every day. We have a mutual friend, who does not seem very anxious to introduce me. Could you suggest any way of becoming acquainted with him, as I do not wish to flirt. ANXIOUS.

If the young man is anxious to meet you he will find a means of doing so. If he asks to be introduced, the friend cannot very well refuse to introduce him, so you need not worry.

A FRIEND, AT PRESENT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

There is a young man calls upon me once every three weeks, who lives a good many miles out of town, in fact, when he calls, he is obliged to stop over night, in a hotel. Now this young man, while he is with me, talks over his business affairs and also tells me of his girl friends, and talks in a most candid manner regarding them. What I would like to find out is this: Does he look upon me merely as a good friend, whom he likes to call upon occasionally, or does he think in a more serious strain? FANNIE.

I THINK that just at present he merely looks upon you as a very good friend, in whom he places great confidence, and to whom he enjoys talking. But I would not be at all surprised if the friendship eventually grew to be more than mere friendship, he evidently likes you very much. Treat him as a good friend, be natural and careful in your manner toward him and never run after him.

cause he was getting well into middle age and that no man could write a love story after he had gotten beyond the time of life when every petticoat set him a-flutter, and he could imagine himself falling in love with every charming woman he met.

And this man proved his point by citing how tame the love scenes were in the novels of the great masters of fiction of the writers grew old.

That youth is the only love time of life is the view that fiction and the stage takes of the subject, and it is also the common acceptation.

THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM

By Gaston Leroux

Copyright, 1908, by Brentano's.

CHAPTER XIX.

Rouletabille Invites Me to Breakfast at the Donjon Inn.

"STILL is much loftier when Daddy Mathieu is to bed with his rheumatism." Rouletabille said to me.

But I had eyes neither for Rouletabille nor for the landlady's remedy. I was absorbed over the last words of my young friend and to thinking over Monsieur Robert Darrac's strange behavior.

When he had finished his cigarette and we were again alone, Rouletabille continued the tale of his confidence.

"When I sent you my telegram this morning," he said, "I had only the word of Monsieur Darrac that 'perhaps' the assassin would come to-night. I can now say that he will certainly come. I expect him."

"What has made you feel this certainty?"

"I have been sure since 10:30 o'clock this morning that he would come. I knew that before we saw Arthur Rance at the window in the court."

"Oh," I said. "But, again—what made you so sure? And why since half-past ten this morning?"

"Because, at half-past ten I had proof that Mademoiselle Stangerson was making as many efforts to permit of the murderer's entrance as Monsieur Robert Darrac had taken precautions against it."

"Is that possible?" I cried. "Haven't you told me that Mademoiselle Stangerson knew Monsieur Robert Darrac?"

"I told you so because it is the truth."

"Then do you see nothing strange——"

"Everything in this business is strange, my friend; but take my word for it, the strangeness you now feel is nothing to the strangeness that's to come!"

"It must be admitted, then," I said, "that Mademoiselle Stangerson and her murderer are in communication—at any rate in writing?"

"Admit it, my friend, admit it! You don't risk anything." I told you about the letter left on her table, on the night of the inexplicable gallery affair—the letter that disappeared—into the pocket of Mademoiselle Stangerson. Why should it not have been a summons to a meeting? Might be not, as soon as he was sure of Darrac's absence, appoint the meeting for the coming night?

The door of the inn opened. Rouletabille was on his feet so suddenly that one might have thought he had received an electric shock.

"Mr. Arthur Rance!" he cried.

Mr. Arthur Rance stood before us, calmly bowing.

CHAPTER XX.

An Act of Mademoiselle Stangerson.

"YOU remember me, Monsieur?" asked Rouletabille.

"Perfectly!" replied Arthur Rance. "I recognize you as the lad at the bar. (The face of Rouletabille crimsoned at being called a "lad.") I want to shake hands with you. You are a bright little fellow."

The American extended his hand and Rouletabille, relaxing his frown, shook it and introduced Mr. Arthur Rance to me. He invited him to share our meal.

"No, thanks. I breakfasted with Monsieur Stangerson."

"I did not expect to have the pleasure of seeing you again, Monsieur. I thought you were to have left France the day after the reception at the Elysee."

Rouletabille and I, outwardly indifferent, listened most intently for every word the American would say.

The man's purplish red face, his heavy eyelids, the nervous twitchings, all spoke of his addiction to strong drink—a habit that so surely a specimen of a man should be so intimate with Monsieur Stangerson?

Some days later, I learned from Frederic Larsan—who, by ourselves, was surprised and mystified by his appearance and reception at the chateau—that Mr. Rance had been an inebriate for about three years only; that is to say, since the professor and his daughter left Philadelphia.

During the time the Stangersons lived in America they were very intimate with Arthur Rance, who was one of the most distinguished phrenologists of the New World. Owing to new experiments, he had made enormous strides beyond the science of Gall and Lavater.

The friendliness with which he was received at the Glandier may be explained by the fact that he had reudered Mademoiselle Stangerson a great service by stopping, at the peril of his own life, the runaway horses of her carriage. The immediate result of that could, however, have been no more than a mere friendly association with the Stangersons, terminating not a love affair.

Frederic Larsan did not tell me where he had picked up this information; but he appeared to be quite sure of what he said.

I had to assume these facts at the time Arthur Rance met us at the Donjon Inn, his presence at the chateau might not have to increase our interest in the man himself. But, as American millionaires have been at least forty-five years old, he spoke in a perfectly natural way in reply to Rouletabille's question.

Setting off my return to America when I heard of the attack on Mademoiselle Stangerson, I wanted to be certain the lady had not been killed, and I shall not go away until she is perfectly recovered."

Arthur Rance then took the lead in the talk, paying no heed to some of Rouletabille's questions. He gave us, without our inviting him, his personal views on the subject of the tragedy—views which, as well as I could make out, were not far from those held by Frederic Larsan.

The American also thought that Robert Darrac had something to do with the murder. He did not mention him by name, but there was no room to doubt whom he meant.

He told us he was aware of the efforts Rouletabille was making to unravel the tangled skein of The Yellow Room mystery. He explained that Monsieur Stangerson had related to him all that had taken place in the inexplicable gallery.

He several times expressed his regret at Monsieur Darrac's absence from the chateau on all these occasions, and thought that Monsieur Darrac had done cleverly in allying himself with Monsieur Joseph Rouletabille, who could not fail, sooner or later, to discover the murderer. He spoke the last sentence with unconcealed irony. The he rose, went up to and left the inn.

Rouletabille watched him through the window.

"An odd fish, that!" he said.

"Do you think he'll pass the night at the Glandier?" I asked.

To my amazement the young reporter answered that I was a master of matters indifference to him whether he did or not.

As to how we spent our time during the afternoon, all I need to say is that Rouletabille led me to the grotto of Sainte-Geneviève, and, all the time, talked of every subject but the one with which we were most interested.

Toward evening I was surprised to find Rouletabille making some of the preparations I had expected him to make. I spoke to him about it when night had come on, and we were once more in his room. He replied that all his arrangements had already been made, and this time the murderer would not get away from him.

SOCIETY SET GOES IN FOR GOLF AND TENNIS

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Golf and tennis are now equal favorites with the Summer girl, who, no matter what the weather is, determinedly keeps up her practice in out-door sports.

Golf, with its necessarily great amount of walking is, during the warm weather, left for the real golf enthusiasts, while many of the lovers of the game less anxious to exert themselves enjoy watching from the clubhouse piazzas, while sipping cool drinks and talking over the plans for the Summer.

Tennis is the morning game, and these days the real drawing card for the fashionables who appear in the most fetching of morning frocks to either watch or play.

The Casino at Newport and the various tennis courts of the North Shore present gay scenes, and tennis teas and tennis luncheons are coming to be quite the most interesting of the Summer's diversions.

Among the younger girls who wield the racquet with grace and skill are Miss Eleanora Sears, who is at present at Newport, and who is winning new laurels for herself both at tennis and in the various swimming contests; Miss Marie Lee, Miss Edmond and Leslie Bradley, Mary Josephine Amory, Margaret Thomas, whose own tennis court is each day the rendezvous for the younger members of her own exclusive set; Katherine Warren and Molly Elliott.

The call of the courts is insistent, and the response general. The virus of the racquet is on, and for weeks to come tennis will be the pastime par excellence.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks, who have leased the Hood estate at Dana Beach, Manchester, for the season, have just returned from Europe and taken possession of the place for the summer. They will have with them as their house guest this Summer their young widowed daughter, Mrs. John R. Livermore, whose home is in New York. Mrs. Eugene V. R. Thayer, the other daughter, and Mr. Thayer, will also be members of the Brooks household this Summer.

Of great local interest is the announcement of the engagement of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the famous Labrador surgeon, missionary and author, who is well known in Boston and in various New England Summer resorts, where he has lately addressed audiences of the fashionable seaside folk.

The fiancee of Dr. Grenfell is Miss Anna MacClanahan, daughter of Mrs. E. B. MacClanahan, of Lake Forest, one of the suburbs of Chicago. The acquaintance of Dr. Grenfell and Miss MacClanahan began about a year ago, when the famous Labrador worker was in Chicago in connection with his work.

Miss MacClanahan has traveled extensively, and will be of great assistance to the doctor because of her interest in all particular kind of work, and because of her own technical training, for she is a student of medicine, surgery, and domestic science.

A number of Boston and Springfield people will be present at the wedding next Saturday of Miss Helen Lawton Drury, daughter of Pay Director Hiram E. Drury, and Lieutenant James Harvey Rodes of the Navy. One of the bridesmaids Miss Drury has chosen is Miss Louise Kidder of Boston, and another is Miss Isobel Lawton of Springfield. The other attendants will be Miss Augusta Hayes, the maid of honor; Miss Kate Gibson of New York, daughter of Rear Admiral William C. Gibson; Miss Elizabeth Dearborn of Concord; Lieutenant G. R. Sparrow, the best man; Lieutenant C. H. Woodward, Lieutenant Kenneth G. Catleman, Lieutenant F. R. McCrary, and Surgeon Jacob Stepp.

The wedding is to take place at Newport at noon, at St. John's Church, and among the guests will be many well known people from the naval and military Summer colony at the fashionable resort.

* * *

Members of the Berkshire Equestrian Club are out for a canter early every morning and afternoon these days. Among the leaders of the club this Summer are Miss Nora Insigl, Mrs. Arthur M. Veary, and the Misses Heloise Moore, Charlotte and Gwendolyn Burnes, Kate Carey, Amy and Edith Kohlsaat.

Toward the latter part of the month Mr. Sherman L. Whipple of Brookline is to have the President of the United States as his guest. Mr. Whipple's home is near Clyde Park, and President Taft will arrive there on the 30th.

Mr. Whipple is a lawyer, a graduate of Yale, and he has invited a number of Yale men to be present on the occasion of entertaining the chief magistrate.

Another engagement of interest to Boston people has just been announced. The parties are the Rev. Arthur H. Lang of Bangor, Maine, who has accepted the call to become assistant pastor of the Unitarian Congregational Church, Boston, and Miss Margaret P. McLeod of Bangor. Mr. Lang begins his duties here at once, but the wedding will probably not take place before Autumn.

Of great interest to the society folk hereabouts is the announcement which has just been made, that Boston women, with Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer at their head, are planning a club of six hundred, which will not be unlike the unique Colony Club of New York City.

It is announced that twenty wealthy ladies make up the executive committee, of which Mrs. Thayer is the chairman. Mrs. F. C. W. Richardson is to be the treasurer, and among other well known Boston matrons connected with the new organization and active in its founding are Mrs. Charles S. S. Sargent and her two daughters, and Mrs. R. W. Lovett.

It is the plan of these ladies and others officially connected to remodel one of the old Beacon street mansions, turning it into a building this Fall. This decision will mean that it will be possible to have the club house ready for occupancy this Autumn.

The Briars, the Bar Harbor Summer place belonging to Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears of Boston, has been taken for the season by Mrs. Frederick Pearson of New York, who is now its occupant.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sneider of Evanston, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Wilhelmina Sneider to Lester Bradford Hunter of Boston, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hunter.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage of Boston have gone by motor to Narragansett Pier. They arrived Tuesday and are sojourning at the Casino.

Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder, wife of the noted editor, is at her Lenox country place, Four Brook Farm, where she is entertaining Miss Julia Chapin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chapin of London, England.

Dr. Robert Williamson Lovett of Marlboro street, who was chosen as Secretary Knox as a delegate from the United States to the International Medical Congress at Budapest, Austria, this Summer, will be unable to attend the convention, and is obliged to decline the appointment.

George Chester of Boston arrived in Stockholm yesterday. He will be a guest at Nacka of the Joseph H. Choates.

* * *

F. Monroe Endicott, United States vice consul to Egypt, is being entertained by his sister, Mrs. Franklin Haven of Beverly Farms, whose Summer place is at West Beach. Mrs. Haven was Miss Florence Endicott.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Lars Anderson of Brookline are spending much of their time this month on board the Roxana, their houseboat which is moored off the Beverly shore. A little later they are to sail for Europe.

Mrs. Frances Adams Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Adams of the Westminster, Boston, was among the American ladies presented to the King and Queen of England at Buckingham Palace recently.

The season's tennis tournaments at the Newport Casino will begin on Monday, July 26. Miss Eleanora Sears and Miss Marion Fenno of Boston will be among the players.

* * *

Major Harry Leroy Hawthorne and Mrs. Hawthorne of Boston spent the past week in New York, and are now at Fort Hancock, New Jersey, where they are to be at home after the first of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer of Boston has been elected a member of the Woman's Aid Society of the Newport Hospital.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Swann, whose marriage took place in Stockbridge the first week in July, left Tuesday for a trip to Europe. They are to spend several months in travel, and when they return are to reside in New York city.

Count Torok of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy is expected to join the legation at Manchester this week. The Count was injured recently in an automobile accident and has been unable to leave the hospital up to this week.

HOT ENOUGH YET? NOT ON YOUR LIFE!

By KENNETT HARRIS

H'OT?

Oh, not

At all.

This isn't what you'd call

Hot.

It's cold; it's freezing—what?

It's just a man

It's an account of the sharp, nipping air I use this fan.

Yes, it's the cold has got me dripping wet

And makes me want to shed my underwear.

H'OT!

What commyyot!

Would I sit sitting, gasping in the shade, Half dressed,

Without my coat and vest.

If it is now hot?

I'm afraid

The chill has numbed even your active brain

It gives me pain

To hear a man of your intelligence and sense—

Or of the sense that some suppose you've got—

Saying it's hot.

H'OT?

Yes, here and there you'll find a heated spot

The crematory, that perhaps might beat

Outdoors for heat.

And Tophet, too, would run us pretty hard in that regard.

Hot?

Great Scott!

And you've the nerve to come and tell me so.

Do you suppose the drouth

That cracks my mouth

Comes from a frost of forty-two below?

Hey?

What's that you say?

Well, as it's hot, and seeing that it's you, I don't care if I do.

To-Day's Best Story

FULL of confidence and splendid self-assurance, she entered the big clothier's establishment, where good looking gentlemen in war wore suits ticketed $12 and upward.

"I want a pair of trousers for my husband," she said to the shopwalker.

"Certainly, madam. Can you tell me what size he takes?"

"No; but he's just an ordinary sized man."

"If you can give me some of his measurements, madam, perhaps I might be able to help you."

"Oh, yes," she cried, with enthusiasm, as if suddenly struck with a bright idea; "he takes a fifteen collar."

PREPARING FOR BUSINESS

An enterprising Surrey hotel keeper has hoisted a large signboard notifying that his house and grounds are ready for aerial voyagers, and that there is a splendid garage for flying machines. Flying men are to have a special clubroom, to themselves when they night. Repairs will be promptly executed to the machines, and the men in charge of them and the supply of gasoline will always be kept on hand.—London Courier.

A KANSAS MARTYR

A VISITING young man recently ate the ribbons tied around the sandwich served to him at a party. He was very polite and didn't like to ask what the ribbons were for, and so he ate them. As he had at least four sandwiches, it is estimated that he ate fully three yards of ribbon. We have no often had occasion to point out the blunders made by visiting Topeka people that we cheerfully refrain from saying where this unfortunate young man was from.—Atchison Globe.

AGAIN OR YET?

Simplaight—Oh, Miss Wobbins, may I come to see you again?

Miss Wobbins—Well, I cannot see how you can very well, unless you go this time.—Life.

TO DIVORCE LOVE AND REASON IS NOT WISE

By ELBERT HUBBARD

ROBERT BURNS once explained to Thomas Moore that the first fine, careless rapture of his song was awakened into being when he was six teen years old, by "a sonsie, sweet, sonsie lass," whom we now know as "Handsome Nell."

She was one year younger than Burns, and little more than a child when she and Robert tagged behind the troop of tired harvesters, and walked home, hand in hand, in the gloaming.

And how could Nell then ever guess why her cheeks turned scarlet and why she was sorry when loving-time was over?

She was sweet, innocent, artless, and her love was very natural, tender, innocent.

It's a pity that all loves cannot remain in just that idyllic milk-maid stage, where the girls and boys awaken in the early morning with the birds, and hasten forth barefoot across the dewy fields to find the cows.

But love never tarries.

Love is progressive: it cannot stand still.

I have heard of the "passiveness" of woman's love, but the passive woman is only one who does not love—she merely consents to have love lavished upon her.

A passive woman—one who consents to be loved—should sick, occupation among those worthy dirge who warrant a fit in ready-made gowns, or money redivided.

Love is progressive—it hastens onward like the brook hurrying to the sea. They say that love is blind; love may be short-sighted, or inclined to stubbornness, or see things all out of their true proportion, manifesting pleasant little ways into scrapbook virtues, but love is not really blind—that bandage is never so tight but that it can peep.

The only kind of love that is really blind and deaf is Platonic love. Platonic love hasn't the slightest idea where it is going, and so there are surprises and shocks in store for it. The other kind, with eyes wide open, is better.

Love is progressive. All things that live should progress. To stand still is to retreat, and to retreat is death.

Love dies, of course. All things die, or become something else. And often they become something else by dying.

Behold the eternal Paradox!

The love that evolves into a higher form is the best kind.

Nature is intent on evolution, yet of the myriad of sports that cover the earth, most of them proceed to death; and of the countless rays sent out by the sun, the number that fall athwart this planet are infinitesimal. Insults calls attention to the fact that disappointed love, that is, love that is "lost," often affects the individual for the highest good.

Love in its essence is a spiritual emotion, and its office seems to be an interchange of thought and feeling; but often thwarted love in it becomes gorged, intensified, projects itself into sympathy, and, embracing the world, goes out to help all mankind.

Very, very rare is the couple that have the sense and poise to allow passion just enough mulberry leaves so it will spin a beautiful silken thread, out of which a Jacob's ladder can be constructed, reaching to the Infinite. Most lovers just spoil the molasses cruet. They wear love to a frizzle, and there remains no ladder with angels ascending and descending—not even a dream of a ladder.

Instead of the silken ladder on which the soul mount to Heaven, there is sometimes a dark, dank road to nowhere over which is thrown a package of letters and baskets of flowers bound with a white ribbon, tied in a true-s knot.

The various loves of Robert Burns ended in a black mourning-it place, and before he had reached high noon he tossed over the last bundle of white-ribboned missives and troubled in after moons.

He died aged thirty-seven. The life of Burns is a tragedy, through which are interspersed sparkling scenes of gayety, so if to retrieve the disappointments that would otherwise be unbearable. Go ask Mary Morrison, Highland Mary, Agnes McClehose, Betty Allison or Jean Armour!

And the moral scenic to be that to divorce love and reason is not wise.

The Proud One

By KENNETT HARRIS.

He does try to conceal his pride.
But still he's mighty dignified;
And gladly I'll concede that he
Has every reason so to be.
Some months ago the lucky cuss
Was nothing more than one of us;
A homeless wretch, who cooked at will
His feet upon the window sill;
A saggy vagabond who might
Stay out till any time of night;
A reckless wastrel who would dare
To throw burned matches anywhere;
A poor, neglected creature, who
Could smoke until the air was blue.
He don't now, but he has instead
A family—and he's its Head;
A family with coaxing ways,
A family whom he obeys;
A family with loving wiles
And laughing eyes and dimpled smiles.
It really makes a fellow sigh
And wonder if it comes too high.
I like to watch him and his bride.
My, but he's awfully dignified!

FORCE WITHOUT GRAMMAR

Complaint was made to a local man by one of his neighbors that dogs who were swimming in a pond were causing quite a nuisance. The owner of the property gave the man the privilege of putting up a sign, as he had asked permission to do it. The notice read as follows:

"No Loffing or Swimming on Theze Grounds.—Order by ——. It Carried Law Will be Forced."—Berkshire Courier.

CONGRESS refused United States Commissioner of Education Brown's request for $5,000 to send a certain photo of child life, but granted $15,000 for a scientific study of clams.—Baltimore American.

How to Bake Beans

We have no secrets, madam. We are going to tell how you—if you had the facilities—could bake Pork and Beans exactly as good as Van Camp's.

Get the choicest of Michigan beans, picked over by hand. Get only the whitest, the plumpest, the fullest-grown. Have them all of one size.

You will need to pay several times what some beans would cost, but they're worth it.

Soak the beans over night, then parboil them.

Now comes the impossible. The beans must be baked in live steam, and you lack it. That steam must be superheated to 245 degrees.

Dry heat won't do. You can't supply enough dry heat without burning the beans to a crisp.

Then the beans must be baked in small parcels—we bake in the cans. That's so the full heat of the oven can attack every particle. Otherwise the beans will not be digestible. They will ferment and form gas, as do your home-baked beans now.

Bake the tomato sauce with the beans—bake it into them. That's how we get our delicious blend.

When the beans are baked until they are mealy, surround the can with cold water. That stops the baking instantly, and sets the blend and savor.

Then you will have beans that are wholly digestible. All beans will be baked alike, yet not a skin will be broken. The beans will be nutty because they are whole.

Then the tomato sauce—that's impossible for you. It must be made from whole, vine-ripened tomatoes, picked when the juice fairly sparkles.

When you buy the sauce, you rarely know what you are getting. If it is made from tomatoes picked green, it lacks zest. If made of scraps from a canning factory, it lacks richness.

Some tomato sauce is sold ready-made for exactly one-fifth what we spend to make ours.

Our point is this: It isn't your fault that home-baked beans are mushy and broken—crisped on the top and half baked in the middle. That they are neither nutty nor mealy—not even digestible. That they always ferment and form gas. It is simply your lack of facilities.

Van Camp's BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE
PORK AND BEANS

The best way is let us cook them for you. We have all the facilities. Let us furnish the meals—fresh and savory—ready for instant serving.

Think how unwise it is to bake your own beans when you can get Van Camp's. Here is Nature's choicest food—84 per cent nutriment. More food value than meat at a third the cost. A food you should serve at least three times a week.

Think what you are missing, and what your people are missing when you spoil such a dish as that. Leave the choice to your people. Ask them which beans they want. And be glad of their choice. For, if they like Van Camp's, see the bother you save.

And see what you save on your meat bills.

Three sizes: 10, 15 and 20 cents per can.

BIG VOLUME OF SALES IN REAL ESTATE

These hot days are good for the real estate business, apparently, for a large volume of sales has been reported during the past week and to-day another large grist went to record.

In the West End the four-story brick house and 875 square feet of land at No. 30 Allen street, near Blossom street, assessed for a total of $9,800, have been sold by Marcus S. Lorie et ux. to Annie Shulkin. The land is rated for $5,000.

Asher White et ux. have sold to Mary Whiston the three-story and end brick dwelling house, 1,900 square feet of land at No. 1 to 3 West Canton street, near Warren avenue, South End. This property is taxed on a total valuation of $8,000, of which $3,400 is on the land.

Another West End property sold is that at No. 33 Pinckney street, near Joy street, comprising a three-and-one-half-story brick house and 1,180 square feet of land, all assessed for $5,800, of which $4,400 is on the land. Amy L. Martin, administratrix; William E. Linnell and Mary E. F. Barou et al. transferred to Lilley B. Tirrell.

In Roxbury the frame house and 11,703 square feet of land at No. 29 Crawford street, between Warren street and Blue Hill avenue, have been sold by William B. Van Amringe et ux. to Mary E. Gallagher. This estate is assessed on a total valuation of $10,800, of which $5,800 is on the land.

Clara E. Badlam has sold to Frederick W. Edwards the frame house and 8,322 square feet of land at No. 520 Columbia road, corner of Davenport avenue, Dorchester. The property is taxed for a total of $9,300, of which $7,500 is on the land.

In the same suburb the brick house and 1,717 square feet of land at No. 13 Savin Hill avenue, between Pleasant and Minot street, have been sold by Annie F. Crosby to the Kilby Investment Company. This estate is assessed for a total of $3,900, $500 being on the land.

The George H. Pendergast estate has sold to Michael J. Mahoney the frame house and 4,600 square feet of land at No. 24 Ashley street, near Russell street, Charlestown. The property is valued by the assessors for a total of $6,100, of which $4,600 is on the land, but the property was purchased for $4,000.

ACTOR "COUNT" ROUSES CADETS

Denounced as a liar for his strictures on the United States army and the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, "Count" Leo Giocomo, former military attache to the Italian embassy at Washington, in the banquet of the First Corps of Cadets at the Hotel Lenox, to save himself from being pitched out of a window by the angry cadets. He was called a liar by Captain Charles H. Cole, the toastmaster.

The host to which the "count" was speaking was "A Comparison of the American and Italian Armies." He said nothing about the Italian military forces, but started with a diatribe on the men of the United States army, who, he said, were "well fed, well fed, well fed. They have the life of dogs, and they are dogs. The enlisted man gets only two hours a day to themselves."

Half a dozen members of the corps enjoyed the incident immensely. They had put up the job and had induced Steward Baird, an amateur actor, to impersonate the "Count," without letting his identity become known to the rest of the company.

CONFERENCE GUESTS OF A. SHUMAN

The Atlantic conference enjoyed a reunion at "Heimeco," the home of A. Shuman of Boston, at Beverly Cove. The party came from Boston in the private observation car of General Bancroft. At luncheon Mrs. Carl Dreyfus was the hostess.

The occasion served to commemorate the birthday of the General. Charles H. Taylor, who was given a cut glass loving cup. Speeches were made by Charles T. Gallagher, Sebastian J. Elder, Arthur Estabrook and Mr. Shuman.

BARS WIDOW FROM FUNERAL

WATSEKA, Ill., July 14.—Arrangements to-day for the funeral of J. B. Sayler, the banker who was tragically slain at Crescent City did not include the presence of the widow, who, with Dr. W. L. Miller, the slayer, is in jail here.

Mrs. Sayler broke down when she received a call from Thomas Sayler, a brother-in-law, who lives in Chicago. She wept bitterly and expressed a desire to attend the funeral to-day. Her request was refused by Sheriff Hielkes.

Feeling against Mrs. Sayler and Dr. Miller in Crescent City, while unfriendly, has lost its violent aspect, and it would be foolish to run the risk of reawakening it by the sight of the woman," said the sheriff to-day.

Goldie, the banker's only child, was the principal mourner. It was for her that Sayler maintained silence over the accusations of Dr. Miller to Mrs. Sayler. The intimacy between the two is said to have had its first growth in the annual love of hunting.

It is believed that the only piece of evidence in the case which remains to be investigated is the sealed packet said to be in Mr. Sayler's private strong box in the vault of the Bible bank at Crescent City.

INTERSTATE BOARD BAGGAGE DECISION

WASHINGTON, July 14.—All discrimination is not forbidden by the act to regulate commerce, but only such discrimination as is undue. This, in effect, was a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case of the Herlocker-Deming Company against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which has been traveling salesmen, who carry about 1,250 pounds of baggage on all over 150 pounds of which they have to pay excess fare.

LOWELL FIGHT GOES TO COURT

The case of the three police commissioners of Lowell who were removed by Mayor Charles H. Brown is to be reviewed by the courts, application for the writs of certiorari were made to-day with the clerk of the Superior Court at East Cambridge.

The men removed are Frank K. Stearns, Charles H. Hanson and Thomas P. Boulges. Three separate petitions were filed, taking up about fifty pages of typewriting and newspaper clippings. The gist of the charges set forth in the petitions is that the cause for their removal that it was unjust and an arbitrary action on the part of Mayor Brown.

The petitions were filed by Lawyer William A. Bent, after which he went to the courthouse in Boston to ask a judge to issue writs of certiorari forthwith.

A hearing on the return of the writ will be held before Judge Richardson in Boston at 10 o'clock to-morrow. Thirty-six days were taken up with the hearings in Lowell and there are thirty-seven volumes of testimony to review.

SOCIETY MIXED OVER TWO MRS. GOELETS

NEWPORT, July 14.—The two Mrs. Robert Goelets are having the fun of their lives. They are being called on like chore for one another, they receive each other's mail, they are receiving each other's social cards, and the fun is not over yet. Mrs. Robert Goelet is having her pictures in the newspapers for the other Mrs. Robert Goelet. Mrs. Robert Goelet who is traveling in Europe Sunday is the mother of Robert Walton Goelet and the owner of the famous full steam yacht Nahlma, which has been cruising in European waters, and is generally entertaining the nobility of Europe and the most exclusive members of the two continents.

NEWPORT "SWELLS" KILL EXCURSIONS

NEWPORT, R. I., July 14.—Newport's business circles expect to pay some colony of having prevented further railroad and steamboat excursions into the town, which in former years yielded immense revenue to local establishments.

This year there have been no rail excursions from Boston, and it is said that there will be none. Also the steamboat service from New York via Greenport has been shut off. This line also is operated by the New Haven.

"GHOST" OF GRACE BROWN ON LAKE

MALONE, N. Y., July 14.—Creepy rumors are raising "goosebumps" on the superstitious who live around Big Moose Lake, Eagle Bay and Black Pond in the Adirondacks. They say that a ghostly couple is taking a phantom pair—a young woman and man—appears on clear moonlight nights on those placid waters. There is a new episode because a ghostly form of Chester Gillette, in July three years ago, murdered Grace Brown, a crime for which he paid the penalty in March, 1908.

CHARGE BROKERS STOLE MARGINS

Charged with the larceny of $1,050 deposited with him as margins on stock purchases by Louis S. Cohen, of No. 30 Winter street, Frederick W. Neither the defendant nor the complainant would talk about the case in advance of the trial.

TROLLEY COMPANY WINS $5,371,582

NEW YORK, July 14.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the order of the lower court requiring the Metropolitan Securities Company to pay William Load, receiver of the New York City Railway Company, the sum of $5,371,582.54. In addition to this amount the sum of $8,000,000 which the Metropolitan agreed to pay when it took over the road.

$60,000,000 COKE MERGER ARRANGED

PITTSBURG, July 14.—All the details of the $60,000,000 coke merger, to include every independent coke owner except those in the Connellsville district, have been working out. The merger will likely be completed this week, it is stated, negotiations following the return of John W. Gates and Charles Mc Kelvey from a conference with producers at Uniontown.

SPANISH GUNBOAT BOMBARDS MOORS

MELILLA, Morocco, July 14.—Spain has begun measures against the Moors for the recent murder of four Spanish workmen in Morocco. The Spanish gunboat Dona Maria de Molina bombarded the Moorish camps near here for several hours. The heavy sea was prevented the landing of troops.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, July 14.—There is an apparent change in the market's tone on account of the drought and excessively high temperatures in Texas, which has already damaged the cotton crop and will, if continued much longer, result in serious injury to other crops as well. Belief that President Taft will insist upon real revision of the tariff is also a factor, while the fact that the corporation tax measure seems likely to be enacted without modification of its objectionable inquisitorial feature are all published by Wall Street. The belief is entertained, too, that some of the dividend rumors recently circulated either had no basis whatever in fact or were premature, and that the bull campaign had for some time been carried along on promises on likely of fulfillment, with the result that the technical position was no longer as strong as it had been.

To set at rest the minds of those who have been exercised over the question of an extra dividend for the Northern Pacific, the statement is made positively that the directors of that road do not contemplate anything of the sort or the issuing of any additional stock in the near future.

"The leading interests in Northern Pacific," it is said, "are very well satisfied with the result from operations for the fiscal year closed June 30. Messrs. Harriman and Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific, G. H. Burbs, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and James J. Hill are the town talking of first importance now being considered by these gentlemen and their associates with respect to the various railroads they represent."

The break in Virginia-Carolina Chemical may be looked upon as an unfriendly incident. The stockholders, in spite of some disappointment, are to be congratulated upon having put in active relations with the company's treasury after having gone without any dividends for seven years, particularly as the management has profited by the experience of 1907, when a bond of $5,000,000 was negotiated at a cost of about 20 per cent, commission included.

Far more attention is paid to the rise in Illinois Central than to the drop in Virginia-Carolina Chemical. The advance of ten points in less than ten sessions spells manipulation.

Union Pacific owns about 400,000 shares of Illinois Central stock, of which there are approximately 160,000,000. The latter organization for a long period had issued stock instead of bonds for all improvements, equipment, etc. Results have been most gratifying figures. Investors have increased heavily. A decade ago the road's income per mile was $7,500. To-day it is double that. Intrinsically then the company's position warrants a good investment for the shares. Finally the acquisition of the Illinois Central will give the Harriman interests and will still more diversify the parent company's already widely diversified traffic.

The interesting report to the effect that the Burlington intends to build a link from Herrin, Ill., to Metropolis, where a new line will be thrown across the Ohio River to connect with Paducah, Ky., again serves to call attention to the growing importance of the South as a field for railroad development, and incidentally throws a light upon the present strength in the bonds of the Southern Railway. At Paducah, the Burlington will connect with the Louisville & Nashville, and according to the story current in railroad circles will be established with that road and the Southern Railway, giving the Hill lines access to a large area in the Southeast and connection with the Southern ports than the one already reached over the Colorado & Southern by building the Great Northern, Mr. Hill following the line of greatest possible resistance, and his designs upon southern territory fully indicate what section of the country he thinks will make the greatest progress in the next few years.

Brokerage houses that make a specialty of investments, stocks as well as bonds, are in close touch with conditions, and certain—and express their certainty openly—that there is a decidedly growing disposition on the part of nations like France, Germany and Holland to buy stocks on a larger part of their capital in the securities of the United States. This inclination may become of great importance in the market here. Financiers, however, fear that the corporation income tax may cause a growing demand from abroad for American values.

HEAVY PRICES IN STATE ST.

STATE STREET, July 14.—A dull and heavy list of prices was presented in the local market this forenoon. Arbitrage brokers were inclined to buy stocks on the decline in early dealings. The fire-cost and over advance in wheat attracted attention, although Boston does little in this commodity. Trading in North Butte was light, and the selling which put it off to 47¾ was scattered.

Amalgamated ran off almost a point to 79¼, and advices from New York are of a bearish nature on this stock, due to the weakness of the metal. East Butte declined still further to 11, and Copper Range sagged to 79½. Steel common seemed to receive support, and held at 63 and better.

American Telephone was quiet at 140 and 140½. This company was mailed to stockholders detailed information regarding its capital obligations. The June earnings statement shows gross of $1,329,506, an increase of $164,469 over June of last year, and a balance above interest requirements of $530,506, an increase of $216,597. Montreal Power declined 2¼, a new record, a pocket manual covering stock market fluctuations for the first six months of the year. It also contains dividend payments and other data of value.

Curb trading was again light and fluctuations were of little significance, but the main prices were heavy. Rawhide Mining was an exception, stiffening to 14 cents.

THE TRUTH ABOUT HARRIMAN—The only disease of its kind in the world. Read of it in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

STOCKS GAIN AT OPENING

BY THOMAS C. SHORTWELL.

NEW YORK, July 14.—On a fair volume of transaction, stocks advanced fractionally in the early trading in Wall street. Union Pacific and Wabash preferred shared honors as leaders. The former rose about a point, while the latter made a gain of 1⅜.

Strength of these issues inspired confidence in the balance of the list, and with the exception of Western Maryland, Chicago-Great Western and a few other specialties of less leading standing, railroad and industrial shares gained about half a point each.

Western Maryland declined under pressure of heavy selling, and as a result touched the new low record of 6¾. Its weakness is due to rumors that the stock will be assessed $40 a share. Chicago-Great Western declined 1¾, a new record because of reports that a new company would be incorporated to purchase the old company at auction, thus wiping out the stock.

American shares were steady in London with business in them very dull.

NEWTON VACATION SCHOOLS OPENED

The Newton vacation schools have just opened for a term of four weeks with a record attendance. At Nonantum there are 600 pupils of both sexes, and at Newton Center there are one hundred. The former is in charge of C. D. Miller, principal of the Hyde Grammar School at Newton Highlands, and twelve assistants. The latter is taught by Miss Mary Merse and six assistants. The schools teach basket making, weaving, clay modeling, millinery, dress making, household science, etc. They were founded several years ago by the Woman's Social Science Club, and were so successful that the Social Committee took charge of them.

BOSTON WOOL TRUST BEHIND HIGH TARIFF

President Taft will be asked to veto the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill on the ground that it will work injustice to every person in the country if the wool schedules now suggested pass the Conference Committee.

The Executive Committee of the National Clothiers' Association, which submitted to the Senate a memorial on the subject through Senator La Follette, will take the lead in petitioning the President. This committee has decided to send copies of the memorial to every mill in the country, that they inform customers of the advance which the tariff law would put on prices of clothing and send local protests to the President. It is now hoped to unite the country in a protest that will prevent the President signing the bill, and to frame a new tariff bill in conformity with its reform promise.

The clothiers are taking this step because they despair of help from Congress. The present bill retains every provision of the Dingley law, and as it is contrary to Congressional policy to deal with new propositions in conference committees, the clothiers see no chance of relief except through the President.

Trusts are the beneficiaries of the bill. The forces behind it have been the American Woolen Company, the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, both of which are controlled by the trusts, and, Associated, which the clothiers say is largely under the enrichment of the big ranch owners.

CERTAINTY OF INCOME | FOR THINKING INVESTORS | SAFETY OF PRINCIPAL

NEW STOCK YARDS AT BUFFALO

(FIRE-PROOF CONSTRUCTION)

THE BUSINESS

is one of absolute permanency. It offers Certainty of Income, with Safety of Principal.

A stock yard handles the chief of all food necessity (meat)—cattle, sheep and hogs—in transit from the raiser to the consumer.

The yard charges only for handling and care of the animals as they pass from the farm to market. The Service is Paid for in Cash. There are no risks or losses.

THE PLANT

The new yards will be built of concrete and steel and will comprise and modern facilities for handling 125,000 HEAD OF STOCK at one time. A substantial Hotel and Office building will provide accommodations for a bank, commission men, buyers and others doing business. A large public Abbatoir, to serve patrons of the yard, will be a part of the plant, all of which will be under one management.

42 ACRES UNDER ROOF

THE LOCATION

The Company has an ideal tract of level, well-drained land just outside the city limits on the east.

Four railroads (three of which pass directly through the property, and the fourth along its northern boundary) have equal and ample opportunity to handle the traffic to and from the yards. An electric surface line intersects the yards, making them easily and quickly accessible from the heart of the city.

Farmers and Drovers Stock Yard Co.

We have a letter from an earnest, good reader. It is like many similar letters received. The letter says:

I observe that in talking about temperance to your readers you discriminate between drinks of different kinds. In a recent editorial you said that prohibition and drunkenness go hand in hand. You suggest that the prohibitionist, in making all drinks illegal, compels men to drink whiskey, easily hidden.

You tell your readers that "True Temperance," as you call it, consists in taking the mild stimulants—light beers and wines—and in barring whiskey, gin and so on.

To support your argument you quote Germany and France, where everybody drinks beer and wine, and where drunkenness is rare.

I do not pretend to know much about foreign countries. But America is not a foreign country. Isn't it true that in this country the man who begins by drinking beer or the light wines of the country ends by drinking whiskey and gin and becoming a drunkard? Is there any actual fact that you can advance in support of your argument?

We could give to our reader a good many arguments of our own, and we shall do so later—arguments based on dealings with drinking men, on travels and on sojourn in foreign countries.

What we shall give to this American, who wants the American point of view, is the authority of two Americans that deserve attention.

Recently, in New York, the Evening Journal of that city organized a brilliant game of professional baseball for the amusement of the newsboys. Some fourteen thousand boys attended the game and spent a happy, hilarious afternoon in the open air.

The management of the Brooklyn National League Baseball Club and of the New York American League Baseball Club volunteered their services. They brought all of the members of both clubs to give the boys a happy day.

The members of the two teams, numbering some forty altogether, dined afterward at Shanley's, in New York City, as the guests of the Evening Journal.

When they were invited to dine they accepted with pleasure, but made certain stipulations as to the sort of dinner that baseball players in training ought to have.

It seems to us that the views of these baseball men are important. They handle highly-paid athletes—men on whose physical condition AND SOBRIETY depend the amusement of hundreds of thousands of citizens and the profits of two great baseball clubs.

The views of these men as to TRUE TEMPERANCE are set forth in the following letters addressed to the editor of the New York Evening Journal.

The first letter is from Mr. C. H. Ebbets, president of the National League team, of Brooklyn. He says:

To the Managing Editor New York Evening Journal:

Dear Sir—I accept with pleasure for my team the invitation to dine as the guests of the Evening Journal. We would request a simple dinner, with light beer and no other stimulant. That is our idea of the proper drink for athletes in training.

Yours very truly,
BROOKLYN NATIONAL LEAGUE BASEBALL CLUB.
By C. H. Ebbets.

The second letter is from Mr. John Burke, trainer of the New York American League baseball team. He says:

To the Managing Editor New York Evening Journal:

Dear Sir—The members of the New York American Club are very glad to amuse the newsboys by playing for them without any charge whatever. And we accept with pleasure the Evening Journal's kind invitation to dine after the game.

May I suggest, in regard to the dinner, that the men, while the baseball season is on, live very temperate lives. They do not any of them want to have spirits or any strong drinks on the table. If you will give them a good, American dinner, with plain American beer, they will appreciate it. In every organization there are, of course, one or two men more or less tempted by alcohol. Our experience is that men can drink beer with safety, but that the stronger drinks are apt to start off a weaker man and make it difficult for him to keep in the condition that high class baseball demands.

Yours very truly,
THE NEW YORK AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL CLUB.
By John Burke, Trainer.

The Boston American has said, and will repeat, that WHISKEY IS A DRUG AND NOT A DRINK. Gin, brandy and all the highly alcoholic spirits are drugs, fit to be used only as medicine. They should be classed with cocaine, morphine, opium and so on, and sold under the restrictions that accompany the selling of dangerous drugs.

Our reader wants to know if all drinks are not alike, and if the man who drinks beer or light wines, to begin with, doesn't end up with gin and a drunkard's grave.

The two letters printed above answer the question, in our opinion. The two men who wrote these letters are responsible for the sobriety, FOR THE ABSOLUTE PHYSICAL FITNESS OF TRAINED ATHLETES, WHOSE NERVES, MUSCLES AND DIGESTION MUST BE IN PERFECT WORKING ORDER.

They would no more allow their baseball players to drink whiskey or gin than they would allow them to smoke opium or use hasheesh.

They do not, however, forbid the men the use of the temperance drinks, and they request that a light beer be served with the men's dinner.

These managers of baseball players realize that our friends, the prohibitionists, OUGHT to realize, that you cannot make men universally TEETOTALERS, but you can make them TEMPERATE.

The man who really believes in temperance should work against the drinks that are drugs, and in favor of the light, temperate drinks—light beers and light wines.

If you forbid every kind of alcoholic drink, then you force the man who WILL drink to take whiskey, EASILY HIDDEN, REQUIRING NO ICEBOX, AND SAFELY SOLD IN SECRET DEFIANCE OF LAW.

Make it difficult to get the drinks that are drugs; make it easy all the year round to get the real temperance drinks.

Make a campaign of temperance based on common sense and human nature—THAT WOULD BE THE SOLUTION OF THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

Never Again!

I NEVER PAY MORE THAN 15¢ FOR STEAK!
HOW WOULD A LITTLE LIGHT BEER GO BEFORE GOING TO BED? GOT A DIME?
CANT WE GET 5CTS. WORTH? I'LL ONLY WANT ONE GLASS.
GOOD MORNING, TIGHTWADDO, I'M AFRAID I'LL HAVE TO ASK YOU FOR ANOTHER QUARTER! I FIND THERE AINT A BIT OF BREAD OR MILK IN THE HOUSE!
ONE DOLLAR!—10! 25!—A DOLLAR AND 35!—I COULD HAVE LIVED A WEEK ON THAT!
GOOD-BYE, TIGHTWADDO COME AGAIN!

"Forty Days or Bust"

Two strapping Boston schoolboys are on the Atlantic Ocean to-day, eastward bound, and another sturdy and energetic Boston schoolboy is speeding across the continent, westward bound, in a round-the-world race against all records.

They carry the gonfalon of the Boston American. And the American pays the bills.

Each of the boys is accompanied by a mature companion of his choice.

The parties have planned the swiftest circuits of the planet that have ever been made.

We submit that the game is great, that it is sportsmanlike and should stir the blood of all who love courage and stamina.

We suggest also that the issues have a high practical value.

For the world is ruled by the imagination.

And the shortening of the world-compassing schedule-time makes the orbis terrarum more accessible to HUMAN THOUGHT; and so DRAWS THE NATIONS NEARER TOGETHER.

When we shall be brought to think of the world journey as a matter of forty days—instead of sixty or eighty days—China and the Philippines will be nearer to us—closer to the reach of our understanding.

So the American's Marathon race around the world is to be regarded as an adventure in human sympathy—a motion toward the universal republic and the FEDERATION OF THE WORLD.

The pioneers of the great plains wrote upon the canvas of their prairie schooners: "Pike's Peak or Bust!"

They were conscious of a civilizing mission that nerved them to face their grim alternative.

So now the American's round-the-world parties have written upon their standard:

"BACK TO BOSTON IN FORTY DAYS—OR BUST!"

They, too, are conscious of a civilizing mission.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk

Pa was reeding the evening paiper & I was eeting my dinner & Ma was reeding a magazeen. Pa was reeding about the Red Sox & the Doves, & he never likes to be interrupted. Oh, listen, sed Ma, to this butiful littel poem in the magazeen. I think magazeen poetry is wonderful, sed Ma.

Moast of it wud taste good if you spread it on a toasted cracker, sed Pa. But I suppoze you will have to reed it. I think you might wait till Bobbie has finished his dinner, Pa sed.

No, sed Ma, I am going to reed it now. Here it is:

Beside the sounding sea I take my stand,
Billows from brine d scoury of the gulfs;
Across the bay a lonely fisher pulls,
& Nachur is co-op-shanally grand.
Noiz steels upon me the grate light-house light,
& my grim soul is tempest-tossed tonite.

Isent that butiful? sed Ma, & jest think, it was rote by a woman. Her naim is Nalda Nuraigin. I dount see it, sed Pa, & I cuddent see it with a pair of feeld glasses. I think it is six lines of tripe, sed Pa. I cud rite a better poem with a carpenter's pencil, sed Pa.

You are only jelius, sed Ma. You know that the magazeens dount care for yure stuff, & every time thay send back one (1) of yure poems you git peevish about the sucess-ful authors. As for myself, sed Ma, I think the lines is positive-ly divine. How butiful is that graze, the light-house light. Light house light, sed Ma, how graceful. That is nothing, sed Pa, I cud rite the words Light House Light two (2) lights in one (1) line if I was lit up enuff. Now, Pa sed, if you will pardine me for, say ten (10) minuts, I will be back from the library with a reel poem. It won't talk more than ten minuts at the outside, Pa sed. So he went in the library & sure enuff he calm out in ten (10) minuts. This is whut he read to Ma & Me:

EVENING ON THE MOOR.

Tonite I stand upon the dark moor's ledge,
& feel the awful grandeur of the place
& kick a hominy-bean full in the face,
& drive a musk rat back into the sedge.
All of my nerves is terribly on edge,
For nite-fall unto me no sleep can bring;
My hed is being split as with a wedge;
Mercy alive, ain't I the nervous thing!

Isent that grand? sed Ma. It is so sad. Then Ma took out her handkerchief & began to cry & I wanted to pleese Pa so I took the napkin & beegan to cry into the napkin. Here, here, sed Pa, what in the world are you crying for?

Beekaus yure poem is so tender & so sad, Ma sed. That ain't a sad Poem, sed Pa, that is supposed to be a comick poem. There is a laff in each & every line, for all except bone-heds, sed Pa. He was awful mad, but he cuddent make Ma stop crying. For hevings sake, sed Pa, wait till I read it over agreun to you. Then Pa read it over agreun & Ma cried louder & louder. You dosn't mean to tell me that you reely think this is a sad poem, do you? sed Pa. Of course it is sad, sed Ma, it is pitiful in the extreem.

Then Pa sed to Ma, Now I know why you think all the poems in the magazeens is good. You oughtent to be reading poetry, Pa sed to Ma, you ought to be ripping out hasting threds with a pen knife. Then Pa tour up his poem & beegan to read aggean about the Rex Rox and the Doves.
